SUGGESTIONS AND COMMENTS ON WESTERN TRIP

1. Trip not properly reported in eastern papers.
 - a. size of crowds and degree of enthusiasm materially toned down.
 - b. Mistakes and minor incidents highly overstated.
 - c. Steadily developing trend of enthusiasm underrated.
2. Crowds reacted enthusiastically to fighting spirit in speeches.
3. Smiles and anecdotes, particularly those bringing out the human side of the President, reacted favorably on the crowds.
4. Fine response to back-platform technique.
5. Too little attention paid to spotting of train for platform talks.
6. Public address system was inadequate on train. In future, preparation should be made for covering both sides and overflow.
7. Staff too frequently blocked public view of President.
8. Staff work improved during course of trip, but considerable improvement still desirable.

build up constructive reports to their papers. Efforts should be made constantly to create news items to feed back to the press cars. Recognition of hostile press should emphasize the importance of furnishing as much constructive material as is possible.

15. Too much irritation shown by staff when asked unfavorable questions.
16. Reliance should not be placed on telling two or three newspapermen about matters and depending upon them to pass the word along to colleagues.

9. Reception and channeling of visitors through train could be improved; number of visitors left train feeling that the President had not received their name correctly. Better system of introducing desirable.
10. Better liaison with local groups imperative.
11. Greater attention to details of advance preparation important.
 - a. Better to choose smaller auditoriums to insure overflow crowds.
 - b. Counter-attraction; should be checked in advance.
 - c. Full information on special appearance requests should be obtained and weighed before appearances made.
12. Newspapermen badly located in parades. Since publicity is of primary importance on such trips, protocol should be ignored in many instances in order to bring press closer to President so that crowd reaction will register.
13. Correspondents not furnished with sufficient material to work on while en route and therefore were left to their own devices which frequently led to mischief.
14. Such items as periodic reports describing conferences being held by the President, mail received, and so forth - give steady impression that the President is carrying on routine office work at all times. Statements by President regarding scenes along the route, excerpts from discussions about current matters and such items will furnish newspapermen material to

DEXTER, IOWA

I am glad to be here.

It does my heart good to see the grain fields of the Nation again. They are a wonderful sight.

The record-breaking harvests you have been getting in recent years have been a blessing. Millions of people have been saved from starvation by the food you have produced.

The whole world has reason to be everlastingly grateful to the farmers of the United States.

In a very real sense, the abundant harvests of this country are helping to save the world from Communism. Communism thrives on human misery. And the crops you are producing are driving back the tide of misery in many lands. Your farms are a vital element in America's foreign policy.

And while I am on that subject - I know that the war talk which is so prevalent today is causing all of you deep concern. It is plain enough that we are facing a very disturbing international situation.

I should like every American to realize that this country is making every possible effort to preserve the peace.

In this critical situation, my motto has been:

"Keep your temper and stand firm." We have kept our tempers.

We have stood firm. And we have been reasonable and straight-forward at all times.

It is the policy of this Government to continue working for peace with every instrument at our command.

At the same time, we have been rapidly building up our strength.

The peace of the world and the prestige of the United States require that the Nation be strong and vigilant.

But that is not the main point I wish to cover today.

In addition to the issue of peace, there is another important reason why this is a critical period for America.

I am talking about our economic future - your economic future.

That was a painful lesson. It should not be forgotten for a moment.

Since then, the farmer has come a long way.

The agricultural program of the Democratic Administration in sixteen years has enabled farmers to attain decent standards of living. Interest rates on farm credit have been sharply brought down. Farm mortgage indebtedness has been reduced by more than fifty per cent. Farm mortgage foreclosures have almost disappeared.

All this was done under and by Democratic Administrations.

Today the world needs more food than ever before.

There is every reason for the American farmer to expect a long period of good prices - if he continues to get a fair deal. His great danger is that he may be voted out of a fair deal, and into a Republican deal. 536.

So long as the farmer, the worker and the businessman pull together in the national interest, this country has everything to hope for.

But it is terribly dangerous to let any one group get too much power in the Government. We cannot afford to let one group shape the Nation's policies in its own interest, at the expense of the others.

That is what happened in the Nineteen Twenties, under the big business rule of the Republicans.
Those were the days when big corporations had things their own way. The policies that Wall Street big business wanted were the policies that the Republicans adopted.
Agriculture, labor, and small business played second fiddle, while big business called the tune.

Those were the days of Republican high tariffs -- tariffs that penalized the American farmer by making him pay high prices for manufactured goods, while he was receiving low prices for his crops.

You remember the results of that Wall Street Republican policy.

You remember the big boom and the great crash of Nineteen Twenty-nine.

You remember that in Nineteen Thirty-two the position of the farmer had become so desperate, that there was actual violence in many farming communities.

You remember that insurance companies and banks took over much of the land of small independent farmers.

223,000 farmers lost their farms

Will this Nation succeed in keeping its prosperity?

Will it preserve its high standards of living next year, and the year after, and the year after that?

I know of only one way to get assured prosperity.

That is by cooperation among agriculture, labor, and business, large and small.

of agriculture with labor cooperation of agriculture & labor with business large & small

When these groups work together in a common cause, this country can achieve miracles. We saw that during the war.

We saw it before the war. By common effort, in the last fifteen years, every group in the Nation steadily increased its income. Our people rose from despair to the highest living standards in our history.

The Wall Street reactionaries are not satisfied with being rich. They want to increase their power and their privileges, regardless of what happens to the other fellow. They are gluttons of privilege.

These gluttons of privilege are now putting up fabulous sums of money to elect a Republican administration.

Why do you think they are doing it?

For love of the Republican candidates? Or do you think it is because they expect a Republican administration to carry out their will, as it did in the days of Harding, Coolidge and Hoover?

I think we know the answer. I think we know that Wall Street expects its money this year to elect a Republican administration that will listen to the gluttons of privilege first, and the people not at all.

The Republican reactionaries want an Administration that will assure privilege for big business, regardless of what may happen to the rest of the Nation.

The Republican strategy is to divide the farmer and the industrial worker - to get them to squabbling with each other - so that big business can grasp the balance of power, and take the country over lock stock and barrell.

To achieve this end, they will stop at nothing.

When the Democratic Administration had to face this problem in the past, the Government set up grain bins all over the wheat and corn belts to provide storage.

Now the farmers need such bins again.

But when the Republican Congress rewrote the charter of the Commodity Credit Corporation this year, there were certain lobbyists in Washington representing the speculative grain trade.

These big-business lobbyists and speculators persuaded the Congress not to provide storage bins for the farmers.

They tied the hands of the Administration.

They are preventing us from setting up the storage bins that you will need in order to get the support price for your grain.

DEXTER, IOWA

Sept. 18, 1948

They remember one plain fact. Never once during the great crises of the past fifty years have the Wall Street Republican Administrations lifted a finger to help the farmer. Wait a minute - they did once.

They gave you a Farm Board. That was their great contribution.

How well you must remember the depression of the Nineteen Thirties. The Republicans gave you that greatest of all depressions. When hogs went down to three cents.

And corn was so cheap you were burning it for fuel.

All through this century the American farmer and worker have been the victims of boom and bust cycles - with the accent on bust. And they have suffered alike in these misfortunes.

How many times do you have to be hit on the head before you find out what's hitting you? It's about time that the people of America realized what the Republicans have been doing to them.

Why is it that the farmer and the worker and the small businessman suffer under Republican administrations, and gain under Democratic administrations?

I'll tell you why. It is a result of a basic difference in attitude between the Democratic and the Republican parties.

The Democratic party represents the people.

It is pledged to work for agriculture. It is pledged to work for labor.

It is pledged to work for the small businessman and the white-collar worker.

The Democratic attitude puts human rights and human welfare first.

But the attitude of the Republican gluttons of privilege is very different. The big money Republican looks on agriculture and labor merely as expense items in a business venture. He tries to push their share of the national income down as low as possible and increase his own profits. And he looks upon the Government as a tool to accomplish that purpose.

These Republican gluttons of privilege are cold men. They are cunning men. And it is their constant aim to put the Government of the United States under the control of men like themselves. They want a return of the Wall Street economic dictatorship.

You have already had a sample of what a Republican administration would mean to you.

Two years ago, in the Congressional elections, many Americans decided that they would not bother to vote. Others thought they would like to have a change. And they brought into power a Republican Congress. The notorious "do nothing" Republican 80th Congress.

Let us look at the results of that change.

This Republican Congress has already stuck a pitchfork in the farmer's back.

They have already done their best to keep price supports from working. Many growers have sold wheat this summer at less than the support price, because they could not find proper storage.

On the one hand, the Republicans are telling industrial workers that the high cost of food in the cities is due to this Government's farm price policy. On the other hand, the Republicans are telling farmers that the high cost of manufactured goods on the farm is due to this Government's labor policy.

That's plain hokum. It's an old political trick.

"If you can't convince them, confuse them."

But this time it won't work.

The farmer and the worker know that their troubles have been coming from another source.

In 1932 under the Republicans we 12 to 15 million unemployed with average wages 45 cent - and we had 15 cent corn & 3 cent hog 539.

When farmers have to sell their wheat below the support price because they have no place to store it, they can thank this same Republican Congress, the Congress that gave the speculative grain trade a rake-off at your expense.

But the Republican reactionaries are not satisfied with that. Now they are attacking the whole structure of price supports for farm products.

This attack comes at a time when many farm prices are dropping and the price support program is of the greatest importance to the farmer.

The Democratic Party originated the farm support program. We built the price support plan out of hard experience. We built it for the benefit of the entire Nation, not only the farmer, but the consumer as well.

Republican spokesmen are now complaining that my Administration is trying to keep farm prices up. They have given themselves away. They have given you a plain hint of what they have in store for you if they come into power. They are obviously ready to let the bottom drop out of farm prices.

The purpose of price support is to prevent farm prices from falling to ruinously low levels. Every consumer should realize that these supports apply only when farm prices have dropped below parity.

The Government is not now supporting the price on major food items, such as meats, dairy products, and poultry.

The Government has just begun to support the price of wheat, which has dropped from around three dollars a bushel to about two dollars.

This support price has nothing to do with the price the consumer is paying for his bread.

When wheat prices were going up, the price of bread rose steadily. It went up from ten cents a loaf to eleven cents - to twelve cents - to thirteen cents - to fourteen cents.

They have invited a depression by refusing to curb inflation.

And now they are attacking the farm support program.

The Wall Street Republicans are not worrying about whether you like it or not. Their political wiseacres have assured them that the farmer has fallen back into his old habit of voting Republican, whatever happens. The Republicans are saying, "Don't worry about the farm vote. It's in the bag".

So long as you had a good year once in a while, you would be satisfied.

So they thought. So they think today.

B F

Those who are wilfully trying to discredit

the price support system don't want farmers to be prosperous.

They believe in low prices for farmers, cheap wages for labor, and high profits for big corporations.

These are the facts the people need to know.

I am going to keep hammering away at the facts until the whole country rings with the truth about these gluttons of privilege.

The record of the Republican 80th Congress is one long attack on the welfare of the farmer.

Under the Democratic Administration since Nineteen Thirty-three, the Government sponsored the great soil conservation program that helped to lay the foundations for the present prosperity of the American farmer.

B

But the Republican 80th Congress, under the false mask of economy, cut and threatened to kill the soil conservation program. You people here know best the importance of soil conservation to American agriculture.

You know what the reactionary attack on soil conservation will cost the farmer if we let the Republicans have their own way.

At every point the Republican 80th Congress did what the speculative grain lobby wanted it to do.

They killed the International Wheat Agreement, which would have assured American wheat growers a large export market for five years at fair prices.

They started a move to put a death-tax on farm cooperatives.

They ruled out the grain bins that help make the ever-normal granary effective.

Now wheat prices have fallen a dollar a bushel.

But the price of bread has not come down one cent.

There you have the policy of reactionary big business.

Pay as little as you can to the farmer, and charge the consumer all that he can bear. That is a fair sample of what the Republican reaction has meant to you in the past two years.

To you, and to every consumer, in cities and on farms alike.

When the Republicans claim that wheat price supports are to blame for the high price of bread, they are trying to stir up the city consumer against the farmer by downright dishonesty.

The truth of the matter is that by encouraging the record production of the last few years, the support program has actually kept consumer prices down.

B 71

You and I know they're making a big mistake.

From what I have seen, the farmers of this country have their eyes open. You're not going to be fooled again by the slick propaganda of Wall Street.

In only two years, with only the Congress under their control, the Republicans were able to weaken your position gravely.

Well, imagine what would happen if they were to get both the Congress and the Presidency for four years.

What they have taken away from you thus far would be only an appetizer for the economic tapeworm of big business.

Your best protection is to elect a Democratic Congress and a President that will play fair with the farmer.

An Administration that will reinforce soil conservation, provide adequate storage facilities for grain, encourage production, and help the farmer make enough on his crop to meet the cost of living, and have something left over.

I don't need to tell you how long it takes to get a good crop, and how big the dangers are. You can work a year, plowing and cultivating, and then at the last minute, a sudden drought or flood can wipe you out. You all know how terrible these disasters of Nature can be.

Now you are faced with the danger of another kind of disaster - a man-made disaster bearing the Republican trademark. For sixteen years the Democrats have been working on a crop of prosperity for the farmer.
We have been plowing, seeding, and cultivating the soil of the American economy in order to get the crop of prosperity that you have been enjoying for the past several years.

The question is: Are you going to let another Republican blight wipe out your prosperity?

I have reminded you of the evils wrought by Republican Administrations in recent times. But my purpose has not been merely to bring up the past. I am trying to point the way to a healthy future. The Democratic Party is looking forward, not back. We are planning to aid the farmers of America meet their pressing problems and avoid catastrophe.

Today farmers are faced with the threat that markets will fail to keep up with their production. The reactionary Republican answer is to let prices crash to the bottom. But the Democratic Party has a constructive way of preventing such a collapse.

We are reaching out to develop world markets that will absorb production above America's own needs. Scientific research is discovering more and new uses for farm products. We know that the world can absorb the farmers' output, if the right conditions are created, and we are working to insure continued prosperity for American agriculture.

The Democratic Party is fighting the farmer's battle.

We believe that farmers are entitled to share equally with other people in our national income. We believe that a prosperous and productive agriculture is essential to our national welfare.

But the Democratic Party does not stand in defense of the farmer alone. It stands for the people of the United States - the farmer, the industrial workers, and the white-collar worker.

Our intentions are made clear by our deeds.

In this Twentieth Century, every great step forward has come during Democratic administrations of the National Government.
Every movement backward has come under Republican auspices, and it is the people who have paid dearly for these reactionary moves.

Too much is now at stake - heré and throughout the world - to take the wrong path now.

There is one way to stop the forces of reaction.

Get every vote out on Election Day, and make it count.

You can't afford to waste your votes this year.

I'm not asking you just to vote for me.

Vote for yourselves!

Vote for your farms!

Vote for the standard of living that you have won under a Democratic Administration!

Get out there on Election Day, and vote for your future.

before he found it. From the bottom of my heart, out he was on the wrong track and going back ward.

I thank you for your real Hoosier hospitality.

Most Republicans are like that, I'm sorry to say.

I want to talk to you this evening about the people in our country —

the every day citizens who have made this country great.

The basic difference between the two parties in economic matters is simply this:

The Republican Party, as it operates in Washington favors the interests of a few small powerful business groups at the expense of the rest of the people.

This is the course that leads to depression.

The Democratic Party, on the other hand, consistently works for measures which increase and protect the purchasing power of the great majority of the people.

This is the course that leads to prosperity.

Now, certain Republicans say we shouldn't talk about the possibility of a depression because that will give aid and comfort to the Communists.

The Communists, as we all know, have been predicting that our capitalistic system would break down.

I have repeatedly told the Congress and the American people that the Communists were hoping for a depression in the United States - and I have said time and again, that something ought to be done to prevent it.

But now the lesson seems to have become mixed up a bit, and we had better straighten it out.

The thing that helps the Communists is not talking about a depression.

The thing that would help the Communists is having a depression.

That is what I have been trying to prevent.

That is why I have been urging that we do something to halt inflation.

That is why I have been saying that we must protect the purchasing power of the wage earner, the farmer, the small business man, and the people with fixed incomes.

That is why I have been saying that we must NEVER return to the policies of Harding and Coolidge and Hoover.

B FII
I don't see it as a peculiar circumstance that the Republican candidate for President never points with pride to any Republican Administration? He only wants to say "He to" or a successful Democratic Administration.

The Communists don't think I'm helping them.

They don't want me to be the President of the United States.

They are doing all they can in this election to bring about a Republican victory.

I have often said, if you elect a Republican President to go along with a Republican Congress, you can expect them to take you headlong back down the road that led to the Great Depression of the early Thirties.

You don't have to travel that road.

I want to be sure that we don't go that way.

That is one of the reasons I have been speaking to our people all over the country.

But first, I have a confession to make.

Apparently, I have offended the Republican gentleman who wants to be President,

I'm afraid I have startled him by talking about issues and about depressions.

Republicans don't like people to talk about depressions.

You can hardly blame them for that.

You remember the old saying:

Don't talk about rope in the house of somebody who has been hanged.

That's the way the Government ought to work.

What use is a government if it doesn't work for the good of the people?

I used to think that the dangers of depression would not be as great in the future as they have been in the past ~~heretofore~~.

I had been counting on laws enacted under Democratic leadership since Nineteen Thirty-three to help maintain purchasing power during any down-turn in the business cycle.

I had been counting on these laws to afford enough protection to millions of our people so that never again would they face such days of black despair as they did in Nineteen Thirty-two.

Social security benefits, unemployment compensation, bank deposit insurance, farm price supports, a legal floor under wages, healthy collective bargaining.

All these things I was counting on.

I thought they had so clearly proved their worth that they would never be subject to serious attack.

I was too optimistic.

I gave the elephant too much credit.

No matter what the Republicans say the Elephant hasn't a new look.

The Republicans in the 80th Congress certainly disillusioned me on that score.

I am proud of our record on social security.

But it is not enough. Millions of workers are not yet covered by its benefits, and those benefits are not nearly high enough to meet today's excessive prices.

I recommended - in plain and simple terms - to the 80th Congress that we extend social security to the workers not now covered,

Did the Republican leaders extend it?

They did not.

Instead, they took social security protection away from nearly a million workers who already had it.

The thing that couldn't happen here, has happened here.

The Republican Party has actually started us backward.

Now it promises more of the same. — to take us all the way back.

That's why I have talked about the danger of depression.

That's why I have talked about it in plain terms so that the people will know just what I mean and just where I stand,

I regard it as a proper function of the Government to fight depressions.

The prosperity of this Nation depends upon justice.

We boast about our initiative, our inventiveness, our enterprise.

All these things are important, but unless each group of our people gets a fair share of our national income, our prosperity will crash.

This is a lesson we learned the hard way.
We learned it under the Republican Administrations of the Twenties.

In those years, wages were held down.

In those years, farmers were left ~~alone~~ to contend with the rise and fall of farm prices.

The farmer was in the hands of the speculators and the 80th Congress has ^{tried} put them in those hands again.

Republican
In those years the aged and infirm were left to take care of themselves. As a result, the purchasing power of the Nation declined.

There was no place to sell the products of our farms or our industries - and the result was unemployment and collapse.

We know now that we cannot have prosperity automatically. The only thing we can get automatically is boom and bust.

To secure continuing prosperity takes foresight and intelligent planning. This is the purpose of a law which I regard as one of the most important laws passed during ^{the} ~~my~~ Administration after I became President.

This is the Employment Act of Nineteen Forty-six.

This Act was passed by a Democratic Congress and embodies the Democratic principles of which I am speaking.

It sets up a kind of economic signal room - the Council of Economic Advisers - in which the danger signals flash when things start to go wrong.

For two long years,

the red lights have been blinking in the signal room.

They have been telling us that if we didn't do something about inflation, we would be asking for collapse and depression.

For two long years,

we have been turning in fire alarms.

alarms against the fire of inflation.

And for two long years, the Republican firemen have been too busy playing a game of political checkers to go put out the blaze.

They figured that maybe the fire of inflation would burn itself out, or that it was un-American to put an extinguisher ~~water~~ on the flames.

Now, that is a terrible way to run a fire department.

But that's the way the Republican 80th Congress met the problem of inflation.

Now another alarm bell rang on social security.

More than forty million Americans are protected by our Social Security laws - old people, widows, unemployed, blind people, dependent children.

Don't be misled by Republican promises in this campaign - actions speak louder than words.

The record of the Republican Party that really counts is the record of the 80th Congress.

And the Republican candidate, who has embraced that record so warmly, gives you no reason to hope for anything better from him.

He says that he is proud of the record of the 80th Congress.

The American people can no longer assume that these laws which safeguard them from disaster are secure from attack.

I recommended - in plain and simple terms - that the 80th Congress increase old-age insurance benefits by at least fifty per cent.

Did the Republican leaders do that?

They did not.

The Republican firemen not only failed to turn out the hook-and-ladder. They actually set fire to a couple of houses.

They struck nearly a million Americans off the social security rolls; and their fire chief now says he is proud of them.

Now, let's look at health and medical care.

We need more doctors, more nurses, more hospitals.

And we need a system which will enable the average

American family to pay for proper medical care.

Each year, because of lack of proper medical care, we lose more of our people than we lost in all the fighting of World War Two.

Each year, we lose over four million man-years of work because of bad health. More working time than we have ever lost in the worst strike-year on record.

The Republican Congress passed the Taft-Hartley bill because it claimed it was worried about strikes.

The Congress would have done better to spend its time worrying about loss of production due to sickness.

Each year, we lose twenty-seven billion dollars in national wealth through sickness and disability.

These are dreadful figures.

*If we can stop that loss
we can pay off the national debt in 9 years with the saving.*

We can do something about it, and we must do something about it.

Here is what we need. For every four doctors in practice today, we need at least one more - and we need to have them located more evenly throughout the country.

We need twice as many hospitals as we have.

And we need to distribute them better.

There ought to be a good hospital within easy reach of every person in the country.

Does cancer care about political parties?

Does infantile paralysis concern itself with income?

The Democratic Party

~~We Democrats~~ hold that the people are entitled to the best available medical care.

We hold that they have a right to ask their Government to help them get it.

Now, let's take a look at education.

It's the same disgraceful story with education that it is with health.

There is no reason on earth why a great Nation like ours should not educate all its children.

There is no other way to assure a strong and healthy Nation.

Prepaid health insurance will be one more keystone in the great structure of social insurance which has been enacted by the Democratic Party.

There has been a lot of nonsense ^{talk} about health insurance.

There has been a well-organized campaign to discredit it and to confuse the issues involved.

The plan I have proposed does not disturb the traditional relationship between doctor and patient - except that the doctor will be paid more regularly for his service. Nor is this any more revolutionary than any other form of insurance.

B F

It is one hundred per cent American .

It is just a way to collect the cost of medical care on a pay-as-you-go basis.

What did the Republicans do with my proposal for health insurance ?

You can guess.

They did nothing.

All they said was - "Sorry. We can't do that.
The medical lobby says it's un-American."

I put it up to you.

Is it un-American to visit the sick, aid the afflicted, or comfort the dying ?

I thought it was simple Christianity.

Most of all, we need to make it possible for every American to afford medical care.

At present, only one out of five Americans can afford all the medical care he needs.

This is the crux of the problem and I am not going to mince words about it.

The best health facilities and the finest doctors in the world are not much help to the people who ^{can't} ~~cannot~~ afford to use them.

I proposed a national system of health insurance in Nineteen Forty-six and I have urged it repeatedly since that time. There is no other way to assure that the average American family has a decent chance for adequate medical care.

But every American mother and father knows that the schools in the United States face a crisis today.

Elementary schools, high schools, and colleges are bursting at the seams.

We don't have nearly enough school teachers and we don't pay them nearly enough.

And if the school teachers want to organize for better pay - I am all for them.

The school situation is getting worse - not better.
At least six million more children than are now enrolled in elementary schools and high schools will be seeking admittance by Nineteen Fifty-five.

Think how that will crowd our schools.'

We shall need at least two hundred thousand more classrooms by that time. And we shall need tens of thousands of new teachers.

Without a strong educational system - free of governmental control - democracy is crippled.

Knowledge is not only the key to power.

It is the citadel of human freedom.

We must maintain and expand our schools or we shall surrender our liberties without even fighting for them.

I asked the Republican 80th Congress again and again, to pass legislation which would help us meet the educational crisis.

It flatly refused.

Here again the issue is plain and clear.

This Nation is no wiser than the education of its citizens.

This Nation is no stronger than the health
of its citizens.

This Nation's security begins with the welfare of its citizens.

The Democratic Party believes in the people.
585.

We believe that the people are entitled to prosperity, to health, to education, to social security.

We believe that it is the function of Government to see to it that the people have these advantages.

This great Nation must not stand still -
It ~~nor~~ ^{not} must ~~it~~ go backward - it must go forward - Go forward to even greater heights of leadership in the world.

To accomplish this, our people must grow in strength, in wisdom and in security.

It is my daily prayer - that with a strong, healthy

and well educated united people, and with the aid of Divine Providence, promptly

we will lead the world to lasting peace.

That increase is a direct result of the great advances of the New Deal.

President Roosevelt believed that the rights of the working man were more important than the profits of corporations.

He saw to it that the power of the Federal Government was used, not to destroy unions, but to protect them against unfair and evil practices of employers.

The New Deal established the right of labor to organize and bargain collectively as the keystone of our industrial system.

B

Great Charter

The Wagner Act was the Magna Carta of labor.

I understand that this great center of industry and mining has Democratic city and county administrations.

That's the way it ought to be. And I hope, after November, that you will have a Democratic Congressman, too, - Harry O'Neill. Harry O'Neill has a wonderful record in the state legislature - a record of working for the welfare of the people of Pennsylvania.

When you look at the record of the last two years,
I'm sure you know that ^{by} electing a Republican from this District in Nineteen forty-six ^{- you made a grave} ~~was a~~ mistake - one of those Nineteen forty-six mistakes - when too many people stayed at home and didn't vote.

But it was a mistake which has cost every one of you a very great deal. in fact more than you can be made. But it has to be you a great lesson.

You can't afford to make that mistake again.

This year, Lackawanna County ought to be firmly in the Democratic column from top to bottom.

I have just had the privilege of paying honor to the memory of John Mitchell. I wish I could be with you to help celebrate John Mitchell Day next Friday.

John Mitchell was a great leader,

He laid the foundations of the United Mine Workers, which has grown from his day to ours until it now embraces most of the miners in the United States.

John Mitchell was not only a great labor organizer,
he was a great labor statesman.

B F

He pioneered in the development of effective collective bargaining, and he paved the way for good relations between mine operators and mine workers.

We all know the kind of opposition John Mitchell was up against, in his day, in fighting for the rights of labor and for the principle of collective bargaining.

In the early days of this century, big business was trying to destroy the labor union movement.

Those were the days of the Coal and Iron Police.

Right after the first World War, the employers of this country, aided and encouraged by a Republican administration, launched their open-shop drive to wipe out American labor unions.

The Republicans in power first tried to strip the working man of the protection of his labor unions, and then they led him into the worst depression in history.

In Nineteen Thirty-two, when twelve million Americans were out of jobs and hundreds of thousands of miners were on relief, the American people elected Franklin D. Roosevelt.

In Nineteen Thirty-two, miners who were lucky enough to have a job were being paid about One Dollar and Seventy cents a day - and working only one or two days a week.

Now, miners are getting Fourteen Dollars a day - or more - and working a full week.

5 File

And that great Act stood ~~firm~~ and unchallenged - ~~solid as a rock~~ - until the Republican 80th Congress got to Washington two years ago.

The Republican 80th Congress began all over again the old attack on the basic rights of the working men and women of this country.

The 80th Congress passed the shameful Taft-Hartley law.

That law is only the beginning - it is only the first step in the long-range strategy of the Republican Party to crush organized labor to the ground.

The Taft-Hartley law is like a termite, undermining and eating away your legal protection to organize and bargain collectively.

I vetoed the Taft-Hartley law, not only because it was bad in itself, but because it was only a first step in the drive to wipe out labor's rights.

Let me give you a specific example of how the Taft-Hartley Law directly affects your rights.

The United Mine Workers and the mine owners have recently set up a welfare fund in the anthracite industry -

the Anthracite Health and Welfare Fund.

The contract for that welfare fund was signed in the office of the President of the United States in May 1956. That welfare fund was obtained with the help of the President. Not only did you President fight for a welfare fund he forced a union safety clause into that contract.

It is a fine thing for the miners.

So now these same people are planning to amend the law.

They want to make it illegal for a union

to ask for a welfare fund.

Congressman Hartley, of the Taft-Hartley team,

who has decided that he can't get re-elected this time,

says that he leaves that job to his successors.

Do not be fooled - they will ~~do it~~ if they can.

outlaw your welfare fund

If another Republican Congress is elected in November,

the Republican leaders will do all they can to destroy the growth of union welfare funds.

Now, I can't understand, and I'm sure you can't either, why anyone would oppose a Health and Welfare Fund which is doing such magnificent work.

But there are some people - even now - who say that it is an outrage to ask employers to contribute to an employee welfare fund.

These selfish, backward-looking men slipped a provision into the Taft-Hartley law about welfare funds.
They thought they fixed it so that an employer could refuse to bargain with a union about setting up a welfare fund.

But they were wrong - A Federal court only last month held they were wrong:

The court said that employers do have to bargain about welfare funds.

to amend the law.

They want to make it illegal for a union

to ask for a welfare fund.

Congressman Hartley, of the Taft-Hartley team,

who has decided that he can't get re-elected this time,

says that he leaves that job to his successors.

Do not be fooled - they will ~~do it~~ if they can.

outlaw your welfare fund

If another Republican Congress is elected in November,

the Republican leaders will do all they can to destroy the growth of union welfare funds.

It is conducting a program of research and treatment to find a cure for the disease of silicosis, the scourge of hard-coal miners.

This disease causes nearly twenty-five percent of the so-called "natural" deaths of hard-coal miners.

and Landrock

I am sure I do not have to tell you about the terrible effects of silicosis, or the suffering it causes.

At last, we can hope for a cure, for over half a million dollars is being devoted to this project.

Think what a relief this will be to miners, not only here, but throughout the country and the world.

They will try to close the doors to progress that are being opened by American ^{Labor}~~unions~~ - progress such as finding cures for occupational diseases and giving relief and comfort to working men in their old age.

They will do it all under the hypocritical cloak of "correcting abuses" in our labor laws.

They will do it behind the mask of "national unity."

And, before we know it, they will have us all unified into a depression, the way the Republicans did in Nineteen Twenty-nine.

You can elect a Democratic administration, pledged to the protection of labor's rights,
the expansion of social security,
the improvement of education and health, the building of adequate housing, and the control of the cost of living.

If you do that, we shall not falter in our onward march toward a better and happier Nation.

JOHNSTOWN, PENNSYLVANIA

It has gone just where Big Business and the Republican Party planned for it to go - into higher profits,

Corporation profits after taxes have increased cents on the dollar seventy percent since price control was killed.

Don't think Big Business doesn't appreciate all that the Republican Party has done for it.

Don't think Big Business doesn't appreciate the fat profits that the Republican Party has laid in its lap by killing price control.

During this past summer, up to August thirty-first, officers and directors of the country's largest corporations thirteen to twenty contributed half a million dollars to the Republican election campaign funds.

The great issue in this campaign is whether this country is going to be governed in the interest of all the people, or in the interest of Big Business and special privilege.

I have been criticized during this campaign for talking plainly to people about the issues, but that's the way I do business.

I won't talk ~~high-level~~ platitudes that ~~don't~~ mean ~~anything~~.

nothing

That's all the people are getting from the Republican candidate.

G.O.P. these days means just one thing:

"Grand Old Platitudes".

As President of the United States,

I am worried about a lot of things - the same things that ~~you~~ ^{you} worry ~~about~~.

One of these ^{is} ~~is~~ ^{movie} high prices.

Prices are so high now that they are cutting into ^{the} people's savings.

It is a terrible thing when a family has to dip into its savings to pay the grocery bill - savings which ~~it~~ ^{has} ~~had~~ ^{been} set aside for old age, to educate the children, or for the down payment on a home.

I have done my best to get that ^{anti-inflation} Republican 80th Congress to do something about high prices.

I called the ⁱⁿ Congress back into special session twice and asked for legislation to control high prices.

But the Republican leaders refused to do anything.

B File

And if a Republican Congress is re-elected this year, the same men will be in power again and they still won't do anything!

I'll tell you why they won't do anything.
They won't do anything because their Big Business Bosses won't let them.

Big Business is making too much money out of ~~inflation~~ these exorbitant prices.

Back during the war, we had inflationary pressures just as great as we have today. But a Democratic Administration and a Democratic Congress established price controls.
Because of that, prices were held down - they stayed on an even keel right through the war.

When the war ended, Big Business decided to torpedo price controls.

They wanted to take over the wartime savings of the American people. So the National Association of Manufacturers spent Three Million Dollars to fool the American people into believing that price control was a bad thing.

The Republicans in Congress led the fight to end ~~O.P.A.~~ and, ended after they had ~~killed~~ it, they boasted about what they had done.

You know what has happened since.

Prices have gone up thirty cents on the every dollar.

Food has increased in price almost fifty cents on the every dollar.

We have had to spend our wartime savings paying the grocery bill.

Wages have lagged way behind prices, increasing just twenty cents on the every dollar.

B File

Since price increases haven't gone into wages, where has the money gone? 618.

My Super Day Generalized Nothing there*

I'm highly pleased to be back in Johnstown today; and to have this opportunity to talk with you about the issues of this campaign.

I'm especially glad to be in Buz Wagner's home town.
Buz Wagner was a great hero and a great American.
are
All of us ~~can be~~ proud of him.

The people of Johnstown have reason also to be proud of one of Buz Wagner's fighting comrades - Colonel Bob Coffey. He will make a fine Congressman 26 1/2 from this District, and I hope you give him a record total of votes on November second.

Contributions since then have not yet been published.

Thousands of Dollars came from the railroad industry.

The Railroad Executives no doubt appreciate the fact that the Republicans passed the Bulwinkle Bill over my veto. Now they don't have to worry about the anti-trust laws any more.

Thousands of Dollars came from the steel industry to show their appreciation for the seventy-five percent increase in steel profits since the end of O.P.A.

A quarter of a million dollars came from the big bankers. No doubt that's just a small token of appreciation for the eight billion dollar increase in corporation profits since price control was killed.

b 71

These contributions are not just appreciation for past favors.

West Va. Rep. tax etc

Big Business is trying to make perfectly sure that there will not be any price control with a Republican President and a Republican Congress.

But if you people here in Johnstown and the millions like you, all over the United States, come out and vote on Election Day, we will get a Democratic President and a Democratic Congress.

Then we can bring prices down.

Then we can bring prices down to where your weekly pay envelope will not only keep your family going for the week, but you will be able to put something aside for all the fine things you hoped to buy after the war and haven't been able to buy.

These are what we need for a prosperous country.

A vast majority of the American people are in favor of every single one of these.

But Big Business is opposed to them.

We will never get them with a Republican President and a Republican Congress.

Dutgas to her.

If you and millions of American voters like you go to the polls a week from Tuesday and vote the straight Democratic ticket, we can go forward together to build a richer and stronger and better Nation for all the American people.

Then we will have a Government working for the people.

We will have Federal aid to education.

We will have slum clearance, and half a million new public low-rent houses.

We will have at least a seventy-five cent minimum wage.

We will have extended social security for every working man and woman in the United States.

We will have health insurance to help pay the doctor bills of every American family.

We have been through the most momentous period in the history of the world. 76 days after I became President Germany surrendered unconditionally. 4 months and 21 after I was sworn in as President Japan folded up and surrendered unconditionally - thus ending the greatest war in the history of the world.

My first and one of my greatest decisions - made 2 minutes after I was sworn in was to order the United Nations Conference to meet in San Francisco on April 25th.

Four day after Japan surrendered I sent my first policy message to Congress. That message contained 21 points based on the Democratic Platform of 1944 which I'd helped to write.

When that message went to Congress

SAINT LOUIS

It is good to be back home in Missouri.

For the past two months I have been traveling all over this country, telling the folks about the facts of life. They have been interested and enthusiastic.

And now they are aroused.

I have been working hard, but I am not tired. The welcome I have received everywhere has sustained me. The deep conviction that I am right in fighting for the people has carried me on.

Now I have come back home to report to my fellow Missourians.

We have cracked the Republican East.

Most of New England is going Democratic.

New York is going Democratic.

The North - the South - The east and the West -

are all falling into line.

People ask me where I get my information.

I get it from the best possible source - from the people themselves.

Now I have an old-fashioned notion that a candidate for public office has a duty to tell the voters where he stands on the issues in a campaign.

Since Labor Day, I have travelled twenty-two thousand miles made Two Hundred and Seventy-one speeches and have taken a positive position on every issue.

B F

The people remembering what had happened the day before, said,

"No, we don't know."

And the politician said, "Well, if you are that ignorant it is not proper that I should speak."

And he went back into the palace.

Now the people were very disappointed.

So they gathered again the next day and called upon him to come out.

The politician came out and said,

"Do you know what I am about to say to you?"

Now this time the people had consulted among themselves and they were ready for him. They said,

The politician came out - raised his hands, and said:

The people, afraid of offending the politician, said:

"Oh, yes, we know."

"Well," said the politician,

"if you know what I am about to say, there is no need for me to speak."

And he went back into the palace.

The crowd was disappointed. It had expected big things.

The next day, the crowd gathered again and the politician came out.

He said, "Do you know what I am about to say to you?"

But the Republican candidate refuses to tell the American people where he stands on any issue.

The campaign is ending and you still don't know where he stands.

All you have got is platitudes, double-talk and bewilderment.

The Republican candidate reminds me of an ancient fable
I once heard.

Centuries ago, there was a politician who lived in a palace - which today would be called Albany.

One day the people in the town gathered in front of the politician's palace and called upon him to come out and enlighten them.

The politician then said, "Well, in that event, those who know can tell those who do not know."

Now, since the Republican candidate, like that ancient politician, won't tell you where the Republicans stand, I guess we'll have to do it for him.

Let's get right to the fundamental difference between the Democratic and Republican Parties.

That is the basic issue in this campaign.
The Democratic Party stands for service to all the people.
But the Republican Party stands for special privilege.

We found out what the Republican philosophy leads to under Harding and Coolidge and Hoover.

It led us to the greatest depression in history.

B

And in the years since Nineteen Thirty-two,
we have learned what happens under the Democratic philosophy.

By looking after the welfare of the people who work for a living, we brought prosperity back to this country and we have built a firm foundation for our continued prosperity.

We are enjoying the greatest period of prosperity for all the people that the world has ever seen.

Be sure to remember that when you hear Republican propaganda about the mistakes and failures of the Democrats.

Our prosperity is rolling along on the strength of Democratic programs that were put into effect before the Republican 80th Congress took office in January, Nineteen Forty-seven. Since that time, this Republican Congress has been doing what it could to undermine our Democratic program?

B F

They have been more concerned with what happened to the profits of big corporations than they have with wages and farm income.

They have taken the edge off prosperity for many of us. And there are threats of worse things to come.

The wages of working men have been falling behind the rise in prices - so that their real wages are lower than they were in Nineteen Forty-five.

Not so the salaries of corporation executives.

They are not bothered by the high cost of living.

The profits of big corporations are going right on up, but the profits of small businessmen are going down.

And now the price of wheat and corn is going down while the profits of grain speculators are going up.

B F

The foundations of our prosperity are threatened as a result of the failures of the Republican 80th Congress.

Their biggest failure was their refusal to do anything about controlling prices. I don't need to tell the housewives about the way skyrocketing prices have eaten into the prosperity of the average American family. They know it too well already.

And I will have to ask the Republican candidate to pardon me if I remind him again that having a depression is much worse than talking about one. And I am going to keep right on fighting to get the people to reject the Republican policies that would lead to depression.

The Republicans in the 80th Congress made a vicious attack on the rights of labor. The Democrats in the Wagner Act, had assured to working men and women the right to organize their own unions and to bargain collectively for a fair share of the product of their own labor.

None of us want to go back to the conditions of Nineteen thirty-two.

And we are not going to have a Republican Congress and a Republican President who wants to take us back down that road.

Now, let me talk to you about some of the other issues where the Democratic Party stands on the side of the people and the Republican Party stands on the side of special privilege.

The record shows that you can't get the right kind of action on these issues from a Republican Congress.

What this country needs is not a new President, but a new Congress.

There is an acute housing shortage in this country.

The Taft-Hartley Act is a vicious law.

It must be repealed.

There is another way in which the 80th Congress showed its indifference to the welfare of working people.

That is its refusal to increase the minimum wage.

The minimum wage is only forty cents an hour now. It ought to be raised to at least seventy-five cents an hour.

But the Republicans refused to increase it.

Some of them say they favor a minimum wage - but the lower the minimum, the better they like it.

The Republican 80th Congress was not satisfied just to attack the rights of labor. They went after the farmer, too.

B F

Remember, this is the Congress that the Republican candidate said delivered for the future of the country like no other Congress ever did.

Apparently, he approves of what the Republican 80th Congress did to the farmers' price support program.

This program was originated by the Democrats. Its purpose is to prevent the bottom from dropping out from under farm prices.

Fair prices for the farmers are a very important part of the foundation of our prosperity.

But the Republicans in Congress - or most of them - don't like farm price supports.

B F

They didn't dare attack the price support program openly, however, at least not in an election year. So they slipped in through the back door with a sly trick to keep price supports from working.

They knew that price supports wouldn't work unless there was enough storage space for the grain. They knew there wouldn't be enough storage space unless the Government provided grain bins. So they passed a law that would prevent the Government from providing grain bins.

The result is just what I said it would be when I spoke at Dexter, Iowa, and at Springfield, Illinois.

The Republicans have made it impossible for price supports to work and grain is selling below support prices.

The farmers are not getting a fair price for their corn.

The prevailing price is only about One Dollar and Fifteen cents a bushel and I have heard of one instance where a farmer got only fifty-six cents a bushel.

We must not allow that to continue.

We must not go back to the disastrous farm prices of Nineteen Thirty-two.

This is not a matter of concern to the farmers alone. It concerns every one of us.

When the farmers have no money, the merchants in the small towns feel it mighty quick. Then it is not long before industrial workers are being laid off in the cities. Depression spreads to everybody like an evil disease.

B

Under this Act, the labor movement has become strong, healthy, and responsible. It now constitutes a mighty bulwark, not only for prosperity, but also for all of our Democratic freedoms.

But the Republican leaders don't want labor to be strong.

They passed the notorious Taft-Hartley law.

The purpose of this law, according to Republican Senator Wayne Morse was, and I quote:

"This bill is a device for making unions so weak that they cannot carry on effective collective bargaining."

And this is the law that the Republican candidate for President has endorsed.

If we allow it to stay on the books, it will be ruinous not only for labor but for everybody in the United States.

It is a disgrace that in a Nation as wealthy as ours, five million families live in slums, and that three million other families live doubled up.

For three years I have been fighting for a comprehensive housing law that would permit the Federal Government to aid State and local governments in clearing away slums, in building large-scale low-rent housing projects, and in improving farm houses.

For three years, the Real Estate Lobby has blocked the passage of an excellent bill which was before the Congress of the United States.

For three years the leaders of the Republican Party have refused to act,

The American people can wait no longer for a Congress that will provide the Housing we need so badly.

We must have a Congress that will provide homes for our people, and not just profits for Real Estate owners!

We must have a Democratic Congress!

There is also an acute shortage of schools and teachers in the United States.

We have fallen far behind in building schools for our children. States are financially unable to build new schools fast enough.

The shortage of teachers is even more alarming.
Tens of thousands of teachers all over the country are turning to better-paying jobs as the rising cost of living makes it impossible for them to live on their teacher's salaries.

I have urged the Republican 80th Congress time and again to provide three hundred million dollars to the states to help them meet this crisis.

The Republican 80th Congress refused to provide a nickel, yet it was willing to provide millions of dollars each year to the States to help them build roads.

We must have a Congress that regards school children as more important than the roads over which their school buses pass.

We must have a Democratic Congress!

Republican high prices have worked their cruelest hardship on our old people, on widows, and on dependent children who are forced to live on small fixed incomes.

I urged the Republican 80th Congress to increase Social Security benefit payments in many cases, and I have also urged the extension of Social Security coverage to millions of workers who do not now receive its protection.

The Republican 80th Congress absolutely refused to increase payments , and instead of extending social security, they stripped nearly one million workers of their social security rights!

We must have a Congress that will consider the pittances received by elderly people and dependent children as more important than tax relief for the rich!

We must have a Democratic Congress!

I have been urging the adoption of a national system of health insurance, so that the heavy medical expenses of the average family could be paid for out of an insurance fund.

This is not socialized medicine!

It is plain American common sense!

The Republican 80th Congress flatly refused to act.

We must have a Congress that will consider the health of our people more important than the health of the livestock on our farms!

We must have a Democratic Congress!

The Democratic Party stands for the kind of America where the government serves the people and the people work together for the common good.

Another condition that must be improved at once is the level of our national health. There is an acute shortage of modern hospitals and clinics. We need thousands of new doctors and trained medical personnel.

Each year more than three hundred and twenty-five thousand Americans die, whose lives could have been saved if they had had the proper medical care we know how to provide.

That is a greater number of Americans than were killed throughout World War Two.

I have been urging the Congress to pass laws which would permit the Government to aid in building hospitals, medical schools and clinics.

And it is our kind of America that the people are going to vote for on election day.

The smart boys said we couldn't win,
They tried to bluff us with a propaganda blitz,
But we called their bluff. We told the people the truth.

And the people are with us.

Now the tide is rolling. I have seen it all over the country.

The people are going to win this election.

All you have to do is to go to the polls next Tuesday and vote to keep America free and strong.

of trade which employed about 400 fewer workers. Construction began the new year with payrolls 10 percent above last year. Despite the sizeable gain in construction employment, the industry failed to achieve the high degree of activity predicted at the beginning of the year. Shortage of materials was a handicap throughout the year and contributed, along with seasonal factors, to substantial fluctuations in employment.

All Manufacturing Industries Lose Ground

All manufacturing employment--comprising less than 20 percent of the total nonagricultural work force--totaled 11,200 in January 1948, 6.1 percent below a year ago. Every major industry group lost ground. Although the actual number of workers involved did not exceed 400 in any one of the major industries, the relative declines were quite significant in food processing and nonferrous metals.

In food processing plants, employment has fluctuated seasonally and in reaction to market conditions. There has been evidence of consumer resistance to present prices and a loss of some eastern markets due to high freight rates.

Primary nonferrous metal production went down during the first six months of the year, then recouped in response to improving demand for aluminum sheet. But as of the first of the year, employment in this industry was still over 12 percent below a year ago.

Employment in the area's third important manufacturing activity--logging, sawmills, planing mills, and wood products--was fairly stable throughout the year, except for a shutdown which resulted from a dispute between operators and the union. The strike affected about 1,000 workers and lasted from June to September.

Unemployment Lower Despite Employment Declines

While employment declined, unemployment failed to increase as might have been expected. Actually, about 550 fewer persons without jobs were seeking employment at the beginning of this year as compared with a year ago. Continued claims averaged 3,350 in January 1948 as compared with 3,617 in January 1947. The lower unemployment level is believed to be due to the retirement of large numbers of workers from the labor force; namely, veterans who have filled to capacity every college within 100 miles

During the war the economy of the area was significantly affected by two developments--the coming of the light metals industry and the location of important military establishments in the area. I used to be a Member of the Congress myself -- I was a member of the Congress myself but I happened to be a Member of Congress that was in favor of these things. I was a Member of Congress which started way back there in 1933. I didn't get elected until 1934, so I didn't come to that Congress until 1935, but the vast majority of the development in this part of the world was made under those Congresses when Franklin Roosevelt was President of the United States. I was elected every time Mr. Roosevelt was, and the last time I was elected with him on the same platform, and I helped to write that platform. I am trying to carry out that platform, but I am not getting very much help from this Congress.

That is partly your fault! That is partly your fault. In the election of 1946 you believed all the lies that were published about your President. And two-thirds of you didn't go out and vote. Look what the other third gave you! You deserved it.

Now, if you let that sort of situation continue -- you have got a chance to remedy it this fall -- if you let that sort of situation continue, I won't have any sympathy with you. You will get just what you deserve.

I would like to see this Columbia River controlled. I would like to see the Columbia Central Valley, California and Colorado and the Missouri -- all those rivers kept in their banks and the waters put to use so the country can prosper. We need everything that can be produced in the United States now, just as badly as we needed it during the war. And we must get people in charge of the Government who believe that way. And if you don't get them, that is your fault.

I am certainly glad to be here. It makes me happy to see all this sea of faces.

I hope that some time later on I can come back and talk politics to you.

Thank you very much.

Employment Well Below Year-Ago Levels in January 1948

Employment in Spokane at the beginning of 1948 was at its lowest point in two years. Normal seasonal factors contributed to recent losses in employment which customarily hits a low point in the winter months. In the longer-range trend, several industry groups showed substantially lower employment levels this year than last. Small increases over the year in a number of other activities and a sizeable gain in construction failed to stem the downward trend. The result was a 7.1 percent net decline in nonagricultural employment (exclusive of domestic workers and self-employed) between January 1947 when 63,900 were employed and January 1948 when 59,400 were at work.

Peak employment--64,500--was reached in March when payrolls in nonferrous metals were still high and before force reductions in military establishments had reached any great number. The downward trend began in April and has continued steadily since, with the exception of a slight rise in the early fall months when food processing and construction were at their peaks.

Fewer Women Workers Too

Employment of women has followed the general downtrend, although the declines for female workers were relatively more severe (10.6 percent) than among male workers. A large jump in female employment occurred at the Christmas shopping season, but employment levels in trade returned quickly to normal after the holidays. About 2,100 women were laid off as soon as the season was concluded.

Government Retrenchment Heads Industry Declines

Total Government employment during the war had virtually quadrupled from the 1940 level because of the location of several large military installations in the area. Declines in employment at these establishments set in soon after the cessation of hostilities, and the retrenchment process continued through 1947. These military establishments experienced a decline in civilian employment of over 4,200 workers in the course of the year. This was by far the most outstanding loss--almost 40 percent--in the area.

All other nonmanufacturing activities netted gains with the exception

The Spokane area, coterminous with Spokane County, is dominated by the City of Spokane which includes 80 percent of the county's population. It is the only city of metropolitan proportions located east of the Cascade Mountains in the Pacific Northwest. The area, with total employment close to 75,000 at the beginning of 1948, is primarily a trading center for a large and prosperous, agricultural, mining and lumbering region.

JUNE 9, 1948

Remarks of the President outside the Spokane Club in Spokane, Washington, June 9, 1948, 9:20 a.m., Spokane time.

Thank you. Governor Wallgren, Senator Magnuson distinguished guests and citizens of the eastern half of the State of Washington. I know the whole State of Washington must be here from the looks of this crowd. I can't help but be affected by a welcome like that. I am also intrigued with the sunshine that you have here. I understand that you need a little sunshine. You see I have my hat. I rode all day yesterday in this Western sun and got my face fried. I didn't want to get it turned over and done this time.

I am happy to be here because I am interested in the development of this part of the world. I have made many trips here. I was here when the aluminum plant was set up when a lot of other plants were set up which were top secret, and still are top secret, in this part of the world. At that time I was chairman of an investigating committee in the Senate, of which Senator Wallgren was a member, and we made some very important trips out here for the purpose of helping win the war. And this part of the world -- this part of the United States made a magnificent contribution toward winning that war. Had it not been for the immense power plants along the Columbia River, which we had insisted on being built for the benefit of the public, we wouldn't have won that war as quickly nor as thoroughly as we did win it.

Now the thing that is staring us in the face is to make that same contribution to the peace. And I know that is just what you are going to do.

I am going from here to Grand Coulee, and then I am going to go over the flood areas that have been affected by the Columbia River. I know something about floods. The Missouri has a habit of going on a rampage about once every three years, washing away all the farm lands in the valley. When we came down the Columbia River this morning on the Northern Pacific Railroad, I could see scenes that reminded me of things exactly as they happened in Missouri time after time. And you know what that does. It has been a long time since you have had a flood like this, and you had forgotten what it means. Now you will be sympathetic when the Missouri and the Connecticut and a lot of other rivers overflow and ruin all the industries along the line. In that way we will get a cure for it. There is a cure for it.

I was told last night in Butte that the Silver Bow Creek which rises in Butte, Montana, is one of the head waters of the Columbia River in the United States, and I told that audience that if we could control the Silver Bow Creeks that make up the Columbia River, as we should control the little rivers that make up the Missouri, we wouldn't have these floods. We don't have floods on the Tennessee River any more. They know how to control them. These same situations can be developed on the Columbia River, the river that empties more water into the Pacific Ocean than any other river on the western coast of the United States and it empties the second largest amount of water of any river in the United States. And that water ought to be utilized. You need it too badly here in the Northwest, to have it go out in the Pacific Ocean and go to waste.

I would like to see that project carried out to its logical conclusion. But you are not going to get those projects as long as you have a Congress that believes in the theory of Daniel Webster: that the West is no good and there is no use wasting money on it. There are still men in the Congress who are following Daniel Webster, and they are chairmen of key committees which make these appropriations.

If you don't do something about that, you don't deserve to have anything, that's all I can say to you.

of Spokane; housewives who have not actively sought work; and older workers who have retired.

The area was fortunate in having no excessive unemployment during 1947. In January 1947, at the peak of unemployment, the estimated total constituted slightly over 6 percent of the labor force, while in May, the month of least unemployment, it dropped to slightly over 2 percent. Seasonal conditions have been the foremost among the factors affecting unemployment. During January and February claimants came chiefly from among construction and logging workers unable to work because of weather conditions and sales people no longer needed in retail establishments. An early spring removed 900 applicants from the compensation rolls during the first week in March and began a declining trend that continued unabated until June when two factors caused a moderate rise; namely, entry of student veterans into the labor market, and a decline in aluminum production. After a slight decline as students returned to school, unemployment swung up as unfavorable weather curtailed construction activities to cause a sharp rise in November. With the end of the Christmas shopping season, another rise occurred.

The distribution of job seekers registered for work with the local office in January was widespread among all broad occupational groups. Construction workers at various levels of skills comprised almost one-fifth of all applicants. Job opportunities for this group and for other types of unskilled workers will definitely develop as construction and agricultural work gets underway in the spring. For many service and semiskilled applicants openings may continue to be scarce until late spring. Despite a fairly large number of clerical workers, there are pitifully few qualified typists and stenographers to meet the brisk demands. This occupational group, however, is the only one in which there is a conspicuous shortage of workers.

INDUSTRIAL DISTRIBUTION OF SPOKANE'S WORKERS

Greater Selectivity in Hiring

There is a tendency on the part of employers to be extremely selective with regard to applicants. More and more age limitations are being imposed--women over 35 and men over 50 find it increasingly harder to secure consideration. Even in such occupations as janitor and porter, workers over 50 are not desired. Greater selectivity is also being applied with regard to experience and applicants who are unable to show good experience backgrounds are not desired. This is especially true of clerical and sales people.

Upswing in Employment by Spring

Employment conditions are expected to improve with employers estimating a 3 percent rise in payrolls by May. The trend should generally continue up throughout most of the year until seasonal declines are felt in the late fall. However, employment may not achieve peak 1947 levels since there is no foreseeable source of employment which can offset the permanent reduction in the number of federal workers. Although there are rumors of new industrial activity in the area, none is yet assured.

Further declines are anticipated only in Government, but future losses will be at a much smaller rate. Finance-insurance-and real estate, and service activities foresee no important change in employment levels. Employment gains are forecast for all other activities. Greatest recovery will occur in construction which by May, should be well on its way toward full activity. A one-third increase is indicated; there is a large amount of work for which contracts have already been let or for which bidding dates have been announced. Food processing should recoup its recent losses and return to normal levels; smaller increases are foreseen for lumber and wood products, nonferrous metals and fabricated metal products. Relatively small increases should take place in trade by May if the pattern of employment variations this year follows that of last year.

These establishments are still operating at a comparatively high level but their post-war position is uncertain. Total government employment in mid-1944 had quadrupled from the 1940 level of 3,800. Spokane is an important railroad center, its repair shops servicing five transcontinental railroads and feeder lines providing employment for several thousand persons. Total nonagricultural civilian employment increased from about 54,000 in 1940 to over 71,000 by mid-1944. Half the increase was composed of women who accepted service and government jobs. Another development that will have significant bearing on the economy of the area is the mammoth irrigation system that is being developed by the Bureau of Reclamation as a part of the Grand Coulee Dam project. A total of 1,290,000 acres are expected to be reclaimed for agricultural use. Spokane will plan an important role in this development and will profit immeasurably by the increase of population that will result.

Population and Labor Force

The civilian population of the area increased from the 1940 level of 162,600 to about 175,000 1/in July 1944, and continued to rise by several thousand until VJ-Day. Since then, some decrease has taken place. The population is predominantly white. The 1940 census showed only 0.8 per cent nonwhite and there has been no significant increase in this proportion during the war. In mid-1944 the civilian nonagricultural labor force had expanded by nearly 10,000 over the 61,000 of 1940.

Educational and Training Facilities

Spokane offers the following educational facilities: (1) 36 elementary public schools, 10 of which provide special services to handicapped, deficient and maladjusted children; (2) four special service units, two of which are at hospital centers, and one parental home; (3) two junior high schools and three standard high schools; (4) auxiliary services by public schools, including child guidance, family life education, health department, and transportation of pupils; (5) public night school adult education classes; (6) trade or vocational school offering a variety of instruction, with courses modern in scope and equipment; (7) three accredited colleges in the immediate vicinity of Spokane--Whitworth, which is co-educational and seven miles north of the city center; Gonzaga University, which has an outstanding men's law school and special courses in nursing and law for women; and Holy Names College, which is a women's college offering special education and music. Besides these, the Eastern Washington College of Education is located 20 miles from Spokane in Cheney and is the largest of three state teachers training schools. Spokane has also several Catholic schools of elementary and high school level located throughout the city and providing for both boarding and day pupils.

Spokane, Washington Area - Cont'd.

Government Employment

The war-born military establishments employed over 7,000 workers in December 1945. In addition to the Spokane Air Technical Service Command and the Naval Supply Depot, these include Fort George Wright, Baxter General Hospital, and Geiger Field. It is possible that some permanent installations may develop out of these war-created facilities. Ultimate post-war employment, however, will undoubtedly be much lower than at the present time. City and county government provide a sizeable payroll, Spokane being the county seat of Spokane County. A number of federal agencies also maintain branch offices in Spokane.

Major Industries and Firms

The principal manufacturing industries include food processing (Armour and Co., Carstens Packing Co., and Loose-Wiles Biscuit Co.); lumber (Deer Park Lumber Co. and Long Lake Lumber Co.); machinery (Brown Industries, Columbia Electric, and General Machine Co.); and the non-ferrous metals products plants (Alcoa reduction plant and rolling mill, and Electro-Metallurgical Co.) which are not operating at the present time. Important nonmanufacturing establishments include Washington Water Power Co., Spokane City Lines, and Inland Motor Freight.

Notes for Spokane

1. Glad to be back in Pacific Northwest and particularly in the heart of the Inland Empire of the State of Washington.
2. Have been looking forward to visit for a long time.
3. Sorry about The flood.
4. We must look beyond The flood to The future.
5. Fastest growing part of The country - population of Washington has increased over 28 per cent since 1940's.

SPOKANE 8, WASHINGTON

May 12, 1948

RECEIVED
MAY 14 8 27 AM '48
THE WHITE HOUSE

Hon. Harry S. Truman
President
The White House
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. President:

Since Governor Wallgren told us here at the Democratic State Convention on April 24th, that you are coming to the Pacific Northwest, I have been thinking of effective things you could say about the Administration's Columbia River program. This development marks the opening of a new West. It will take 50 to 100 years to build the great agricultural-industrial empire based on cheap electricity from the Columbia River.

Governor Dewey has just outlined a 10 point program in Oregon for the development of the Pacific Northwest. Every item in that program is already being carried out by your administration. The only hindrance has been caused by the refusal of the Republican Congress to appropriate the amounts of money recommended by you through the budget. However, he leaves out the most important feature, namely, the transmission of the cheap electricity from the power houses on the river to the consumers, without profit. His fifth point provides that the electrical energy shall be sold "at the lowest possible self liquidating rate".

The Republican leadership in Congress wants to sell that power at the bus-bar so that the private power companies can make profit on the transmission of the power to the consumers. They want to turn the Bonneville Power Administration over to the private companies. That is the very thing that will destroy most of the value of the Government's production of cheap electricity here. It amounts to a proposal to use the taxpayers' money to produce this cheap power and then allow private power companies to profiteer on the delivery of that cheap power. Under your policy, the power is delivered without profit for production and industrial development by individual users.

As an illustration, the rate of two mills per kilowatt, at which power is furnished the big aluminum plants in the Northwest, is what makes it possible for them to operate. If that rate is raised one mill per kilowatt hour, it will close every aluminum plant in the Northwest. No private power company would or could deliver power to the aluminum companies at two mills per kilowatt hour. Yet the Bonneville Power Administration delivers it and makes enough to amortize the cost of the dams and transmission lines over a period of years.

The Pacific Northwest has no oil and little coal or gas. This cheap electric power of the Columbia River is our raw material. Its delivery to big industrial users and to publicly owned distribution systems is the greatest incentive to private enterprise in the far Northwest. Because of this cheap rate for power, the new industries built in the Pacific Northwest and operating during the war, 1941 to 1947, actually paid into the Treasury of the United States $300,000,000 in income, corporation and excess profit taxes. I quote these figures from Dr. Paul Raver of the Bonneville Power Administration. That was new tax money.

During the War it would have been impossible to have produced the aluminum produced out here, anywhere else in the United States, because there was no coal nor oil available, and no man power to dig coal. The same was true of the electro-chemical industries. Today the income and corporation tax payments directly traceable to this cheap power amount to from $25,000,000 to $35,000,000 per year. These amounts are federal taxes, not amortization payments. The amount paid to the Treasury by the Bonneville Power Administration to amortize the investment in the Grand Coulee and Bonneville Power dams and power plants, is six to eight years ahead of schedule. In addition are the local taxes which amount to $600,000 per year on these plants alone.

I think you can strengthen yourself greatly in the country if on this trip West you do not attempt to make long speeches or propose new political panaceas. The country doesn't need them. Just talk to the people about their particular sections of the country and their problems. You can point out that the Ship of State has weathered the dangerous period following the awful storms of war and that the nation is heading into an era of peace and prosperity.

I sometimes think that the slogan which the Democrats should use after the National Convention is - Preparedness and Peace abroad.

Production and Prosperity at home.

I appreciate that you did not ask me for the advice I am giving you which is all the more reason you are at liberty to throw it in the waste basket. I only hope you will consider these suggestions and emphasize any of them you think valuable on your trip across the country.

I believe your political stock is rising and that the rise of your popularity can be timed for victory in November. With best wishes, I am,

Sincerely yours,

Clarence Dill

VITAL ISSUES IN FLINT, MICHIGAN - PRICES, HOUSING, AND FLOOD CONTROL

PRICES

A. Cost of Meat

1. Beef roasts and steaks have been priced around $1 per pound since early spring.

2. In Flint, as in Detroit, workers in the auto plants feel that they must have meat at least once a day. Hence, the high cost of meat has become a grievance in thousands of homes.

B. Cost of Automobiles

1. In a city where Buicks and Chevrolets are manufactured, buyers must wait a year or 18 months to obtain new cars. The workmen in Flint feel there is something wrong in this situation.

2. The prices of new cars have gone beyond the reach of many men employed in the car plants.

3. Used cars can be obtained, but buyers must pay premiums of $300 or $400 over the prices of new cars.

4. A Grand Jury investigation of the motor car situation is now in progress.

5. Arthur Summerfield, an auto dealer and Republican National Committee-man, is said to have solicited campaign funds through the Automobile Dealers Association.

HOUSING

A. Slums Scattered through the City

1. Many areas in Flint are shabby and run-down. The temporary housing projects are in bad condition.

2. Except for some temporary housing for war workers and for veterans, there have been no public housing projects in Flint.

3. Private contractors are doing considerable building, but nearly all the houses completed are priced at $10,000 or more -- far beyond the reach of the average Flint workingman.

FLOOD CONTROL

A. Fear Aroused by Recent Floods

1. In the last two springs, there have been two serious floods which caused considerable damage.

2. The Flint River cuts the town in two, and the people are anxious about the recurrence of floods.

(As of August, 1948, based on reports sent to the Research Division)

1. Characteristics of the City.

a. A town that grew into a city very rapidly, Flint does not have a great deal of civic pride.

b. Has a large foreign-born and second-generation citizens population, a large Negro and Southern poor-white population, and an especially large Polish group.

c. The main Buick plant, the largest self-contained auto manufacturing plant in the world, is located here. Chevrolet, A C Sparkplug, Marvel Carburetor, Fisher Body, and Dupont, all have plants in the city.

d. Most of the wealth produced in Flint is spent elsewhere. Few of the large stockholders in the plants live in the city. The old settlers and their descendants are often in friction with the newcomers from foreign groups.

2. Politics.

a. The Poles are almost solidly Democratic and are conscientious voters.

b. During the Roosevelt years, the Negroes became Democratic.

c. In 1944 the county (Genesee) went Democratic except for the offices of sheriff and prosecutor.

d. In 1946, after the Democratic incumbents had fallen out with labor leaders, all county offices went to the Republicans except that of county clerk. Until 1946, Genesee County had been predominantly Democratic for fourteen years.

e. Prospects in 1948:

1. George D. Stevens of Flint and John Reid of Lansing are Democratic candidates for Congress. Both have good records, although Reid supported Harry Kelly, Republican, for governor against Murray D. Van Waggoner, Democrat. Stevens has local labor support and is expected to carry Genesee County.

2. W. W. Blackney will probably be the Republican nominee. Blackney has a reactionary record in Congress and is not popular in the city of Flint or Genesee County.

3. Democratic candidates usually win if there is a large vote. The League of Women Voters, the AFL and CIO, are now putting on campaigns to increase the numbers of registered voters, with good results. Most of the new registrations are expected to be Democratic.

2. Additional Information on Flint, Michigan

3. Suggestion for President's Speech.

a. Local residents in Flint hope the President will speak at the I.M.A. auditorium or Atwood Stadium.

b. A Labor Day picnic is being planned at Flint Park, which is an amusement park and a difficult place in which to speak.

c. It is suggested that many people who would not go to Flint Park would go to hear the President at Atwood Stadium or the I.M.A. auditorium.

d. There is a great deal of interest in the President's coming visit, and many people who are not in the labor movement would like to see and hear Mr. Truman.

FLINT, MICHIGAN

Source: U.F.A. Guide Book, Michigan, 1941

(780 Alt.; 1940 Population: 156,492)

City covers 70 square miles on the Flint River in southeastern Michigan, is third largest city in the state.

1. People - Population is composed of heterogeneous racial and national groups. These groups have developed their own festivals and cultural activities. An annual May festival, commemorating the Polish constitution of 1791, consists of folk songs and dances, speeches and drills, and the singing of the Polish national anthem. Attired in native costumes, the Serbian Society presents a festival with songs, folk dances and native plays. The Flint Robert Burns Club holds a yearly celebration, presenting Scottish dancing, bagpipe music and a concert. The Alhambra Club, a Syrian organization, has its own annual festival at its clubrooms in the business district of the city. A cosmopolitan banquet held annually is featured by a roll call of national groups present.

Negroes form the largest racial minority—about 7,000. Each New Year's Day since 1865, Emancipation Day has been observed in the schools and churches and at the Negro Civic Center. The first week in March is set aside by Flint Negroes as National Negro History Week. Pamphlets and journals issued by the Washington publisher, Carter G. Woodson, who edits the Journal of Negro History are read in schools, churches and civic centers. Another Emancipation Day is observed by the Puerto Rican Negroes of Flint, who on March 23 acknowledge the full governmental representation given to their home island on March 23, 1917.

2. Industry and Labor - Flint makes automobiles for the Nation. Huge factories—long, squat, and seemingly all windows—sprawl throughout the city. The Buick factory is in the north, the mile-long Chevrolet plants and Fisher Body No. 2 Plant in the west, the AC Spark Plug factories in the east, and Fisher No. 1 plant in the south. On the outskirts, far removed from the din of pneumatic hammers and car loadings, are the neatly aligned houses of businessmen and motor company executives.

The birth of the Buick Motor Company in 1904 marked the beginning of automobile manufacture in Flint on an organized scale. Labor, at first scarce, was imported from adjacent towns, farms, and states. Mechanization and simplification of work resulted in large influx of unskilled laborers, the majority of whom were Southerners. The number of foreign workers, although large, was not as great as in many industrial cities of comparable size, for Flint's major growth came after immigration restrictions went into effect.

The auto industry experienced acute growing pains in 1937, when Flint was transformed almost overnight from an open-shop town into a union town. Here was held the first large-scale sit-down strike in Michigan, starting December 30, 1936. General Motors Corporation refused to negotiate with the strikers' demand for collective bargaining. The strikers offered to evacuate, pending negotiations, if the corporation would pledge not to attempt operations or remove machinery. This General Motors refused to do; instead, the company obtained a sweeping injunction against occupation of the plants, which the strikers disobeyed by sitting tight. Chrysler went out shortly thereafter.

Rioting broke out on January 11 when company police attempted to interrupt food deliveries to the sit-downers. Despite the use of riot guns and tear gas, guards and city police were unable to evacuate the strikers. Sixteen strikers and 11 policemen were injured or wounded. The next day, upon orders of Governor Frank Murphy, the Michigan National Guard marched into Flint. Under the direction of the Governor, the National Guard maintained order but adopted a strict neutral hands-off policy. On one occasion, when Chrysler endeavored to break the strike by turning off the heat in the plant, the National Guard prevented. (This was the first time that a governor had refused to use the Guard as strike-breakers).

A widely-advertized back-to-work movement completely failed on February 1st. Ten days later, after numerous conferences, the General Motors Strike was settled. On the night of March 11, strikers marched out of the plants and staged a tumultuous parade in celebration of their victory. Terms of the settlement granted the United Auto Workers bargaining rights for its members but it did not grant the desired closed-shop.

Production of automobiles and auto parts is, by far, Flint's most important industry. Products of the auto industry normally amount to $600,000,000 a year, with a pay roll of $85,000,000. Industries of local character include a structural steel plant, a flour mill, and several breweries. Other articles manufactured in Flint are tents and awnings, trailer coaches, furniture, cigars, cement blocks, soft drinks, mattresses and bedding, and rubber stamps.

3. Local Figures:

G. V. Nash, one of the pioneers responsible for Flint's rise in the manufacture of autos, is still actively connected with the industry. Another, Walter P. Chrysler, was one of the industry's leaders until his death in 1940.

One name, even though slightly obscured by the passage of time, is still looked upon as a symbol of the romantic days in the industry—William G. Durant. Durant, who at the age of 25 was part owner with Josiah Dallas Dort of 17 vehicle plants, gained control of the Buick interests. In 1908, he organized the General Motors Corporation—involving Cadillac, Oakland, and Oldsmobile companies. The next year he bid for, and almost obtained control of the Ford interests; his inability to get a large loan from bankers, who had previously promised it, stopped the deal. In 1910, Durant lost control of General Motors but, by brilliant maneuvering, regained it five years later.

4. History:

- 1819 -- first settlement
- 1830 -- first tavern, first ferry
- 1833 -- road to Detroit
- 1837 -- seat of Genesee County—had post office, sawmill, two dry-goods stores, two grocery stores, two physicians, a lawyer and a U.S. land office

- 1840's -- development of lumbering, fur trade, and cart factories
- 1855 -- incorporated as a city
- 1890's -- city's carriage shops, with total annual output of 100,000 vehicles, had international reputation

Flint, Michigan

AT TOLEDO, OHIO - SEPTEMBER 6, 1948

11:55 p.m. E.D.T.

B F

TOLEDO

1. This is a fine crowd for this time of night.

2. I have appeared before six Labor Day audiences in Michigan today and I am glad to finish up the day in the great State of Ohio.

3. This may be the end of Labor Day, but I am just beginning the most important labor of my life.

4. I intend to cover the length and breadth of this land to take to the American people a Message of the utmost significance.

5. That Message concerns November second. The question before you people is whether you want to go forward with the Democratic Party or backward with the Republicans.

6. These are not just words.

Let me give you two vital illustrations of what I mean.

7. Most of you people here are working people - just as I have been all my life.
8. You are interested in security and good wages in your jobs - and in the prices you are paying to support your family.
9. The Republican 80th Congress has struck you people deadly blows in each of these major fields.

- a) The Taft- Hartley Act was passed by the Republican Congress for the sole purpose of weakening the strength of labor unions.
- b) Big Business was getting worried about the strength of your unions and t he Republican Congress joined with Big Business in a plot to weaken unions.
- c) I vetoed that Bill and did all in my power to stop it but the Republican Congress passed it over my veto.
- d) What's more - it is just the opening gun in the Republican plan to go back to the days when Big Business held the upper hand and forced the working men to take only what they wanted to give them.

- e) I don't believe you men are going to take that lying down and with your help we'll get that unfair law off the books and get a fair labor law instead.

11. Second - The Republican Congress refused to do anything about high prices.

- a) I have tried time and again to get the Congress to pass a price control law so you people won't have to suffer from high prices.

- b) They refused every time. By last July prices had risen so high I thought they couldn't refuse again, so I called a special session of the Congress.

- c) I appeared personally before the Congress and pleaded with them to help the American people.

d) I sent up a Bill that would have controlled prices.

It could have been done, and I showed them how it could be done.

e) But they refused again. Big Business does not want lower prices, and again the Republican Congress

knuckled under to the wishes of Big Business.

f) There's the record. Plain for all of you to see.

You people are faced with a choice.

a) You can choose the Republican party and live in fear. Fear for your jobs, fear of a depression, fear for your families.

b) Or you can choose the Democratic Party and live in confidence. Confidence in keeping the gains you have made, and confidence that you will go on to a happier and more prosperous future.

c) I know what your choice will be.
And if you all will register now and vote on November second, we will demonstrate that the people of this country are still in control of their own destiny.

DEMOCRATIC NATIONAL CONVENTION, CONVENTION HALL, PHILADELPHIA, PENNSYLVANIA

JULY 15, 1948

1. Introduction.

(a) Thanks for nomination.

(b) Acceptance.

(c) Reference to Vice Presidential candidate.

i - United Nations.

iii - Removal of trade barriers.

(c) Foreign policy should not be a partisan issue.

5-A. Now, let us contrast the Democratic record with what the Republican Party stands for.

B FILE

3. We will be working together for victory in a great cause.

(a) Victory has become a habit for our party.

It has been elected four times in a row.

(b) I am convinced that we shall win a fifth victory next November.

(c) The reason is the people know that the Democratic Party is the people's party.

(d) The record proves that it is the people's party.

B F I

4. Record of the Democratic Party.

(a) Record is written in the accomplishments of the last sixteen years.

(b) Confidence and security have been brought to the American people.

(c) i - Farm income has increased from less than Two and One-half Billion Dollars in Nineteen Thirty-three to more than Eighteen Billion Dollars in Nineteen Forty-seven.

ii - Wages and salaries have increased from Twenty-nine Billion Dollars in Nineteen Thirty-three to more than One Hundred Twenty-eight Billion Dollars in Nineteen Forty-seven.

iii - The total national income has increased from less than Forty Billion Dollars in Nineteen Thirty-three to Two Hundred and Three Billion Dollars in Nineteen Forty-seven.

(d) These benefits have been spread among all the people.

B File

2. Purpose of the Democratic Convention.

(a) Convention met to express the will and reaffirm the beliefs of the Democratic Party.

(b) There have been differences of opinion.
That is all right.

(c) The differences have been settled by a majority vote, as they should be.

(d) Now it's time to work together.

6. The Republican philosophy.

- (a) The situation in Nineteen Thirty-two was due to policies of a Republican Government. Party control of the
- (b) The Republican Party favors the privileged few, not the many.
- (c) For fifty years it has been under the control of the friends of special privilege.
- (d) This has been made clearer than ever by the Republican 80th Congress - by the things it did and the things it failed to do.
- (e) Let us look at some of them.

B FILE

7. High Prices.

- (a) Time and time again I recommended extension of price control before it expired on June thirtieth Nineteen Forty-six.
- (b) OPA was killed by those who said prices would adjust themselves.
- (c) Since then I have repeatedly urged the Congress to do something to hold down the cost of living.
- (d) I called a special session of Congress for November Seventeen, Nineteen Hundred Forty-seven.
- (e) The Congress still has done nothing.

B. File

8. Housing.

- (a) Housing shortage is a national disgrace.
- (b) The way action has been blocked by the Real Estate Lobby is a national scandal.
- (c) Comprehensive bill has been pending in The Congress but the Congress has refused to pass it.
- (d) Even the desperate pleas from Philadelphia couldn't get a housing bill passed.

15. Republican Platform.

(a) After making a record like this,

the Republicans had a convention -

(b) They adopted a platform - with a lot of promises.

(c) They promised to do a lot of things I've been asking them to do - and they have refused to do.

10. Federal Aid to Education.

- (a) Schools are crowded - teachers underpaid - and there is a shortage of teachers.
- (b) One of our greatest national needs is more and better schools.
- (c) I urged the Congress to provide Three Hundred Million Dollars to aid the states in meeting the present educational crisis.
- (d) The Congress failed to act.

11. Social Security.

(a) Time and again I recommended improvements in the Social Security law. Including -

i - Extending protection to those not now covered.

ii - Increasing the amount of benefits.

iii - Reducing the eligibility age for women from sixty-five to sixty years.

(b) Congress studied the matter for two years - but couldn't find time to extend or increase benefits.

(c) Congress did find time to take social security benefits away from three quarters of a million people.

(d) They passed that over my veto.

B FILE

12. Health.

(a) The average man has trouble meeting medical expenses.

(b) Health of the nation suffers from lack of medical care.

(c) I have repeatedly recommended that the Congress pass a health program based on health insurance, but it has not acted.

B E U

13. Basic Human Rights.

(a) Everybody knows that I recommended to Congress a "civil rights" program.

(b) I did so because I believed it to be my duty under the Constitution.

(c) Some of the members of my own party disagree with me violently on this matter. But they stand up and do it openly. People can tell where they stand.

(d) But the Republicans all profess to be for these measures - then fail to act.

B E I L

14. Taxes.

- (a) Everybody would like to have low taxes.
- (b) But we must reduce the national debt in times of prosperity.
- (c) And when tax relief can be given, it ought to go to those who need it most.
- (d) Republicans gave tax relief to the rich - although I forced them to improve the bill some before they were able to pass it over my veto.

9. Labor.

- (a) In the field of labor we needed moderate legislation to promote labor-management harmony.

But the Congress instead passed the Taft-Hartley Act, which has disrupted labor-management relations and will cause strife and bitterness for years to come, if it is not repealed.

- (b) I tried to strengthen the Labor Department, but the Congress tore it to pieces.

Took simply annihilated the Labor Dept.

- (c) I recommended an increase in the minimum wage, but the Congress failed to act.

40 cents to 75 cents

- 16 -

16. Let me give you some examples:

The Republican platform cries about "cruelly high prices". I have been trying to get them to do something about high prices and they refused.

The Republican platform comes out for slum-clearance and low-rental housing. I have been trying to get them to pass a bill to do something about that and they have refused.

The Republican platform favors equality of educational opportunity and the promotion of education.
I have been trying to get Congress to do something about that. Up until now, they have refused.

The Republican platform urges extending and increasing social security benefits. I have been urging that, too, and the Republican Congress has refused to do it.

B F 11

17. There is a long list of these promises in the Republican platform.

(a) I can't go through all of them now; but, if you look at the platform and their record in Congress, you will see proof of the difference between promise and performance.

18. I have discussed a number of failures of the Republican Congress.

(a) All of them are important.

(b) Two of them are of major concern to nearly every American family.

i - The failure to do anything about High Prices.

ii - The failure to do anything about Housing.

(c) My duty as President requires that I use every means within my power to get the laws the people need on matters of such great importance and urgency.

B File

20. Conclusion.

What Congress does will be the test.

The American people will not decide by listening to mere words or by reading mere platform pledges. They will decide on the record - the record as it has been written. And in the record is the stark truth that the battle lines in Nineteen Forty-eight are the same as they were back in Nineteen Thirty-two when the Nation lay prostrate and helpless as a result of Republican misrule and inaction.

In Nineteen Thirty-two we were attacking the citadel of special privilege and greed - we were fighting to drive the money-changers from the Temple.

19. I am, therefore, calling the Congress back into Session to reconvene on July twenty-sixth.

(a) I shall ask them to pass laws -

1 - to halt rising prices - and

2 - to meet the housing crisis.

(b) At the same time I shall ask them to act upon other vitaly needed measures, such as:

(1) aid to education

(2) a national health program

(3) civil rights legislation

(4) an increase in the minimum wage

(5) extension of social security coverage and increases in benefits.

Reverend Billy → (6) funds for projects needed in our program to provide public power and cheap electricity of equal value → (7) an adequate and decent displaced persons law

(8) funds for United Nations headquarters.

(c) If there is any reality behind the Republican platform,

we can get action from the Congress now.

Today, in Nineteen Forty-eight, we are now the defenders of the stronghold of democracy and of equal opportunity - the haven of the ordinary people of this land and not of the favored classes or of the powerful few.
The battle cry is the same now as it was in Nineteen Thirty-two;
and I paraphrase the words of Franklin D. Roosevelt as he issued the challenge in accepting his nomination in Chicago:

"This is more than a political campaign;

it is a call to arms. Give me your help, not to win votes alone, but to win in this new crusade to keep America secure and safe for its own people".

THE REPUBLICAN TAX RELIEF BILL IS OF LITTLE HELP TO THE AVERAGE QUEENS CITIZEN WHOSE MODEST SALARY IS NOT IN THE HIGH BRACKET. THE REPUBLICAN TAX BILL ONLY GAVE A $2500 WAGE EARNER A $78 REDUCTION WHEN HARRY TRUMAN HAD RECOMMENDED $160 IN HIS MESSAGE TO CONGRESS. THEY DID, HOWEVER, GIVE THE "BIG SHOT" ($50,000 MAN) A REDUCTION OF $7,550 AND THEREBY PROVED THEIR DESIRE TO FAVOR THE RICH AND PRIVILEGED.

IV

I REMEMBER JIM ROE, YOUR LEADER, JIM DELANEY AND THE LATE BILL BARRY WHEN THEY WERE IN CONGRESS. ALWAYS FIGHTING FOR QUEENS AND OFTEN BREAKING WITH PARTY HEADS. ROE PUT UP A TOUGH FIGHT AGAINST THE LOAN TO ENGLAND AND ONE OF HIS STRONGEST ARGUMENTS WAS THAT WE SHOULD NOT GRANT IT UNTIL ENGLAND SETTLED THE PALESTINE QUESTION. HOW DIFFERENT THE REPUBLICANS ACTED IN THE 80TH CONGRESS WHEN THEY NEVER RAISED A FINGER FOR THE QUEENS PEOPLE.

(DO NOT MENTION LABOR OR TAFT-HARTLEY ACT)

AND FULL BLAME MUST BE PLACED ON REPUBLICAN CONGRESS. ALL QUEENS REPUBLICAN CONGRESSMEN VOTED TO KILL PRICE CONTROLS WHEN HARRY TRUMAN WANTED TO HOLD THEM ON MANY COMMODITIES FOR ANOTHER SHORT PERIOD.

There are over 300,000 families in Queens Co. Certainly the cost of living has risen at least $400 per families.

That is the huge sum that the 80th Rep.
Congress cost the Queens Home Owner + the Rep.
Queens Congressmen voted for it.

Lorain County represents a typical cross-section of the United States — in the north it is highly industrialized in that one of the greatest steel mills is located in Lorain, Ohio.

Elyria City is the County seat and is surrounded by numerous small industries.

The central and southern part of the county is highly agricultural and the percentage of population is one-half rural and one-half urban throughout the entire county.

Lorain County is noted for its industries, dairy farming, and general farming.

Admiral King is a Lorain County resident, having been born in Lorain, Ohio.

Other notables are: Ambassador Sharp, Ambassador to France during the last war, and Ambassador Myron T. Herrick of Wellington who welcomed Lindbergh when he made his solo across the Atlantic.

Politically Lorain County votes with a slight majority Democratic for President and Governor.

100 years ago, in 1848, the Democratic candidate for President made a speech under the historical elm tree in Elyria Court House yard. (I will furnish name later).

Lorain County has the greatest sandstone quarry in the world.

Elyria is named after the Ely family, who settled here in the early 1800's.

Population of Lorain is highly cosmopolitan.

Trusting same is satisfactory, I remain

Very truly yours,

Toledo is the third largest port on the Great Lakes.

People:

Toledo has a many-tongued, but lessening, old-world murmur. Its foreign or mixed parentage groups, gathered in the last half-century of industrial growth, make up 38 per cent of the population. The German, a third of this cosmopolitan Toledo, is the largest group, followed by the Polish, who comprise a fourth. The Canadians are numerous (8,409), and the Hungarians, English and Irish have groups from 5,000 to 6,000 each. The Germans came early, and some of their plain, neat houses seem almost as old as the town. There are old German singing societies, such as the Teutonia Maennerchor, and local Saengerfests are frequent; the Schulplattler, an old German folk dance, is still to be seen. In the large Polish section around Detroit and Nebraska Avenues live approximately 11,000 Poles, with their own stores, churches, and other institutions. Here some of the customs from the banks of the Vistula prevail; now and then the mazurka is danced to gay and vigorous airs. Another large Polish section is north along Lagrange Street. The Hungarians and their Birmingham section, the Russians, Czechoslovakians, Swiss, French, Italians and other nationalities add to Toledo's varied Old World flavor, but it diminishes steadily as American schools, factories, and civic institutions continuously assimilate yesterday's newcomers.

The city's largest Negro neighborhood, populated by approximately 3,000 of Toledo's 13,423 Negroes, lies in an area along and outward from the eastern end of Nebraska Avenue. Here the Brand Whitlock Homes, completed by the FWA in 1936, are in sharp contrast to the aged and worn structures that comprise much of the remainder of the section. There are seven smaller Negro neighborhoods which contribute to the varied scene of Toledo.

Industry:

The 1880's brought a new industrial epoch to Toledo, with glass the measure of the city's new importance. The recently discovered Maumee Valley gas field, an apparently inexhaustible producing area, lured the new industry with cheap fuel. In 1888, Edward Libbey closed his East Cambridge, Massachusetts glass factory and, bringing 100 glass craftsmen with him, founded the Libbey Glass Company of Toledo. For a while he manufactured high-grade crystal and lamp globes. Then, at Wheeling, West Virginia, he hired Michael Owens, glass blower extraordinary, as superintendent of his Toledo plant; together they revolutionized the glass business. Owens first invented an automatic foot pedal to open molds, thereby eliminating much of the child labor from the industry, and a short time later developed a semi-automatic machine to make drinking glasses. The third of Toledo's noted glassmakers, Edward Ford, son of America's pioneer plate-glass manufacturer, came to Toledo in 1896 to establish a plate-glass plant. He built his plant below Toledo on the east side of the Maumee, founding there the model industrial town of Rossford and one of the largest plate-glass factories in the world.

The Willys-Overland automobile company is located here.

Twenty-four railroads converge on the city. Coal trains rumble in from Ohio, West Virginia, and Kentucky. At 40 wharves huge machines pick up freight cars one by one and dump their contents into the holds of freighters with the ease of a farm girl emptying a pail of water. Equally gargantuan are the scoops that unburden the incoming freighters of their red ore.

History:

- 1794 - Fort Industry erected on present site of Toledo. Abandoned in 1812
- 1832 - Permanent settlement
- 1837 - Incorporated
- 1835-1836 - Toledo War between Ohio and Michigan over town

- 1933 - Seven of city's ten banks closed
- 1934 - Electric Auto-Lite strike

Note: The era that elsewhere inspired Lincoln Steffens' Shame of the Cities saw the rise of two famous reform leaders in Toledo. Samuel M. Jones became mayor in 1897, and began to apply to the city government the same "Golden Rule" policy with which he had managed his oil-well supplies factory. As "Golden Rule" Jones he became a national celebrity; until his death in 1904, he warred against misuse of public funds, favoritism, and bossism, and repeatedly defeated both major parties with his nonpartisan ticket. He established in Toledo one of the first municipal utilities, the Toledo Municipal Gas Company, the city's first free kindergartens, public playgrounds, band concerts, and the eight-hour day for city employees. Brand Whitlock, his successor as mayor from 1905 to 1913, four times elected, carried on the independent movement. He was instrumental in securing the passage of a State law providing for the election of all judges on a nonpartisan ballot, and was prominently identified with the campaign leading to the adoption of Ohio's initiative and referendum law in 1912.

Burke (D), vice-mayor of Toledo, former legislator, and former secretary-treasurer of the CIO in Toledo. Registration has increased since 1946, and the auto workers and glass workers are gunning for Ramey with housing and the Taft-Hartley Act the big issues. Both parties agree it will be close. Democrats think Burke can win.

Dear Mr. President:

This is the proposed speech for Brooklyn on foreign affairs. It is a little too long, so there is room for cuts if you want to omit some parts of it. I have indicated a good cut on page 12 to 14 which will bring the length down closer to normal.

The speech for Madison Square Garden is not yet finished but the arrangements are that a plane is to pick it up on Monday morning and take it out to your train.

At the same time I will have ready a third speech which you can use at some other city.

If you want to talk with me about this or the other speeches I shall be working on them at home - Kent Cliffs 2385.

Good luck.

Sincerely,

MADISON, WISCONSIN

(859 alt., 57,899 pop.)

Madison, capital of Wisconsin and home of the State University, lies in the center of the dairylands of southern Wisconsin, filling a narrow isthmus between Lakes Monona and Mendota.

People:

Though representatives of more than 20 different stocks are included in Madison's population, the foreign-born constitute less than 9.5 per cent; natives of foreign parentage constitute 29.5 per cent; nearly two-thirds of the people are descendants of native Americans. The largest national groups are German and Norwegian, still retaining cultural and religious societies. Irish, English, and Italians comprise the next largest divisions. Italians and Negroes constitute the only distinct and homogeneous groups.

Though town and gown tend to form two distinct societies, with separate sets of interests, at times they overlap. The Madison Literary Society allows a few from both groups to attend its solemnities; and the exclusive Town and Gown Club mingles the men of both sets. Members of the faculty, devoted to the "Wisconsin Idea", serve sometimes as public officials, sometimes as trade unionists, sometimes as advisers in the capitol. There is a floating population of students, famous visitors and legislators. When the legislature is in session the lawmakers claim the capitol -- fighting for or against bills on the senate and assembly floors, conducting public hearings in the committee rooms, caucusing in private rooms. Lobbyists hover outside the chamber doors and at the bars where the solons occasionally drift during the day and frequently during the night.

Industry:

Although Madison's other activities far overshadow its industry, the city ranks fourth in Wisconsin industrially, and a surprising variety of merchandise is manufactured. Tin cans, flashlights and batteries, air conditioning and radio equipment, hospital furniture, road machinery, automatic garage doors, metal garages and buildings, oil burners, water softeners, milking machines, bricks, chemicals, castings, culverts, bottle caps, cement stave silos, drugs, rennet extract, candy, ice cream, soft drinks and meat are among the products manufactured here.

History:

- 1836 - Uninhabited by whites, but selected by the Territorial Legislature as the site of the capital and University of Wisconsin and seat of Dane County
- 1837 - First settlers, first post office, general store and tavern
- 1838 - First school, newspaper. First meeting of the Legislature in Madison took place in a small upstairs room of the new American Hotel.

- 1839 - Protestant Episcopal parish, first religious organization, formed
- 1842 - First newspaper
- 1846 - Incorporated as a village
- 1848 - Statehouse completed; State University established
- 1849 - Leonard J. Farwell moved to the village and began large-scale improvements. He replaced the circuitous Catfish (now Yahara) River channel with a canal between Lakes Mendota and Monona, dammed the Mendota end, and built a large grist and flour mill. He opened streets, drained the east side marshland, built side- and cross-walks, and planted thousands of shade trees.
First telegraphic message received.
- 1854 - First train arrived
- 1856 - Became a city; Jarus Fairchild elected first mayor
- 1861 - Madison company was first in state to volunteer
- 1873 - First public library in Wisconsin opened. Free tuition authorized at the University of Wisconsin.
- 1878 - Telephones installed
- 1882 - Electric lights installed; waterworks started
- 1893 - Federated Trades Council met
- 1894 - Madison Park and Pleasure Drive Association organized
- 1917 - Senator LaFollette burned in effigy by university students for anti-war speeches

PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S CAMPAIGN TRIP TO CHICAGO, CLEVELAND, BOSTON,
PROVIDENCE, NEW YORK, BROOKLYN, ST. LOUIS AND KANSAS CITY.
October 24- November 3, 1948

Oct. 25

CHICAGO, October 25th

5,000 persons were massed outside Grand Central Station to greet the President in Chicago and another 100,000 saw and cheered him along the route to the Blackstone Hotel. Riding in the President in an open car were Mayor Kennelly and former Mayor Edward J. Kelly, national committeeman from Illinois.

In the second car were Mrs. Truman, Mrs. John S. Clark, wife of the county assessor, Mrs. Elizabeth Conkey, Democratic national committeewoman from Illinois and a policewoman. The President's daughter, Miss Margaret Truman, rode in the third car with Mrs. Paul Douglas, former U. S. Representative and wife of Democratic candidate for Senator, and the Douglas' teenage daughter, Jean.

Others who rode in the parade behind the President's car were Adlai E. Stevenson, candidate for Governor; Paul H. Douglas, candidate for Senator; John S. Boyle, candidate for state's attorney; Senator Scott Lucas; Mayor Martin Kennelly; Colonel and Mrs. Jacob M. Arvey; State's attorney Touhy; Mr. and Mrs. Al Horan; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gill and George D. Kella, State Democratic Chairman.

Enormous flares, 50 feet apart lit up the streets in dazzling color as the President waved to the thousands of Loop workers who jammed the sidewalks. Brass bands and marching ward workers led the President from the Loop to the stadium along a route brilliantly illuminated with torchlights, fireworks, bombs and rockets.

To handle the crowds and protect the President, 426 city policemen were on the job. In addition 300 uniformed policemen assigned for traffic work there were 114 detectives, six sergeants and six lieutenants assigned to the two parades and the Stadium appearance.

Nearly 300 Illinois Democratic women met the wife and daughter of the President at a tea in the Blackstone hotel from 4 to 5 p.m. President Truman met with a similar number of Democratic leaders simultaneously in the hotel's Crystal Room decorated with a huge donkey made entirely of flowers.

At a reception for ladies of the press Miss Margaret Truman said that whatever the outcome of the election she'll go into opera and do some concerts this season. She was photographed with Virginia Marmaduke and other newspaperwomen. Miss Marmaduke is the reporter for the Chicago Sun-Times.

Shortly after the party's arrival at the Blackstone Hotel, Miss Margaret walked right out again - to the consternation of reporters, photographers and the Secret Service men who guarded the Presidential floor. But her trip proved to have no political implications. She went to a nearby Michigan Avenue store to buy a little perfume atomizer and to ask that it be "gift-wrapped". Later she said "It is an anniversary gift for an aunt of mine. I wanted to get it off so it would reach her in time".

Completely at ease with reporters and photographers Miss Truman said she fully enjoyed campaigning along with her father. It means less than six hours sleep a night, a lot of traveling and not much time for voice practice, she said.

"But I'll catch up on my practicing after the election" she said. Then she added slyly "Back home - in Washington".

PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S CAMPAIGN TRIP TO CHICAGO, CLEVELAND, BOSTON,
PROVIDENCE, NEW YORK, BROOKLYN, ST. LOUIS AND KANSAS CITY.

CHICAGO, Continued (Oct. 25th)

The President rode from the railroad station to his hotel in County Commissioner Arthur X. Elrod's sleek new Cadillac. He admired the car, whereupon Elrod reminded Mr. Truman that he had the privilege of driving him, then the party's vice presidential candidate in 1944. "But at that time I only had a Chevrolet" Elrod explained "See how good your administration has been to me?" The President howled his delight at the remark.

The most embarrassed person at the reception for the President was a Secret Service agent who helped arrange a picture showing a number of prominent Negroes with the President. The SS agent reached over and gently yanked out a person who was in the picture. "This is for Negroes only" he explained. The agent unknowingly removed light-skinned Lucius Harper, executive ~~editor~~ editor of the Chicago Defender and one of the most prominent Negroes in town from the picture.

One of the guests President Truman shook hands with at the reception was John T. Jarecki, collector of internal revenue. The President, in high spirits, listened carefully to catch, first the name, and then Jarecki's title. Then he beamed "Say, do I owe you any money?"

The tremendous heart-warming reception accorded the President in the Stadium actually impaired his speech. He later explained he was so choked with emotion that at first he could hardly speak. The ovation lasted more than five minutes and thus cut into his speaking time.

In the privacy of his suite at his hotel the President said he was convinced that the nation, as a result of his back-breaking tour is now fully aware of the issues and will support the more liberal, Democratic stand. He's convinced, too, that the large crowds he is attracting- the President is out-drawing Dewey- indicate that the tide has turned in his favor.

MASSACHUSETTS

PITTSFIELD, Oct. 27th

The entire Democratic state ticket was on hand bright and early at Pittsfield to greet the President on his first stop in Massachusetts. On the platform were Edward J. Cronin, candidate for Secretary of State; John E. Hurley, state treasurer candidate; State Auditor Thomas J. Buckley; Atty. Francis E. Kelly, candidate for attorney general and John I. Fitzgerald, seeking election to the U.S. Senate.

SPRINGFIELD, Oct. 27th

Rep. John F. Kennedy joined the Presidential party at Springfield as did Joseph C. White, chairman of the Boston School committee and Patrick J. "Sonny" McDonough, executive councilor. Mayor Daniel Brunton of Springfield had his little daughter Mary with him and she got a Presidential hug and her picture made with the Chief Executive. The President tied a "Truman necktie" in Springfield for Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin here. The Secretary traded his own tie for the campaign piece after John Callahan, a Springfield labor leader shouted from the crowd an offer to swap ties. The President deftly knotted the tie for the Secretary.

WORCESTER, OCT. 27th

At the Worcester stop the President was photographed with Mayor Charles F. "Jeff" Sullivan and Sullivan's small daughter Elizabeth.

BOSTON, OCT. 27th

It was estimated that 20,000 people waited to welcome the President at South Station and a crowd estimated at 250,000 cheered him as he rode along the streets to the Hotel Statler. Greetings of "Hello Harry" were shouted by the throng and the President stood and waved to the crowds as the cars swept along. At Mechanics Hall where the President spoke 15,000 people assembled- 7,000 inside the hall and 8,000 outside. The President called his Boston reception "Magnificent! Out of this world!"

Boston, Oct. 27th

Seated on the platform with the President were Mayor James Curley, Secretary of Labor Tobin, Cong. Kennedy, Paul A. Dever, Democratic nominee for Governor and Cong. John W. McCormack, who introduced Mr. Truman. The President made a surprise visit to Archbishop Cushing at the prelate's residence before his Boston speech. The President was accompanied by Mr. Dever, Mr. Boyle and Mr. Connelly of the Presidential staff and Joseph Scolapontti, corporation counsel for the City of Boston. The President and the Archbishop talked privately for 15 minutes then, as the President left, he spoke briefly to some 200 students from St. John's Seminary which adjoins Archbishop Cushing's residence.

Supt. of Police Fallon made the estimate of the Boston crowd which he said was 250,000. Mayor Curley judged it at 300,000 and said the President would carry Massachusetts by 100,000 votes.

In the parade Mrs. Truman rode with Mrs. Curley, Mrs. John McCormack, Mrs. Margaret M. O'Riordan and Miss Marie Dever. Miss Margaret Truman rode with Mrs. Maurice J. Tobin, Mrs. William H. Burke Jr. of Northampton and Mrs. Charles F. Sullivan of Worcester and Mrs. George Curley. Mrs. Rita M. Moylan, vice-chairman of the State Democratic Committee said that Mrs. Truman spoke at length on the importance of the women's vote in this election. "She told us it was very important that we get the women out to vote" she said. Both Mrs. Truman and Margaret were showered with flowers. Each carried an old-fashioned bouquet on the parade route. Miss Margaret Truman was called a "vote stealer" by Elizabeth Watta of the Boston Globe who wrote an article on the President's daughter and her popularity with the campaign crowds.

- NEW YORK -

More than 5,000 persons packed the main lobby of Grand Central station and cheered as the President appeared at 4:06 p.m. His train from Boston was twenty minutes late. The Sanitation Department band played "Hail to the Chief" as he appeared and was welcomed by New York Democratic leaders. These included Mayor William O'Dwyer; Democratic Chairman J. Howard McGrath; State Chairman Paul E. Fitzpatrick; Bronx leader Edward J. Flynn and Manhattan Borough President Hugo Rogers and James A. Farley.

Cheers welled up as the President's car swept out of the station. The confetti, ticker tape and telephone book demonstration along 42nd street was extraordinary. It fell in great flurries and much of it landed in the open cars. It curled and twisted from high windows. The cheers from the crowd grew louder when Mrs. Truman, five cars behind and Miss Margaret Truman six cars behind, came by. Both wore great orchid clusters. Mrs. Truman waved only once in awhile but Miss Truman's black-gloved hands were busy responding to curbside screams of "Margaret, Margaret". She seemed popular with the throngs everywhere.

~~XXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXX~~ Police Chief Wallander rode ahead of the President's car and with the President were Mayor O'Dwyer, Senator McGrath and Manhattan Borough President Rogers. Chief Inspector Martin Brown was in the car with Commissioner Wallander.

The garment sector put on the greatest show. Answering the greeting of David Dubinsky, international head of the ILGWU the President said "Thanks Dave for this great welcome. We are winning this election. Don't let them tell you any different". The crowd answered with an approving roar.

At Greeley Square the President spoke briefly and was greeted by Joseph Potofsky of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America and his aides. As the President left the speakers stand Mr. Potofsky said "We were loyal to the New Deal. We were loyal to you. God bless you. We will re-elect you next Tuesday."

✓ (NEW YORK TIMES, NEW YORK POST AND
NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE, Oct. 29

Spotlights and searchlights gave dramatic strength to the meeting in City Hall Park next on the agenda. Mayor O'Dwyer introduced the President who spoke as the crowd cheered from the City "all plaze rich in colorful flags and bunting. It was estimated that 65,000 people heard him here."

At Sara Delano Roosevelt Park, named for FDR's mother the President was presented with a five-tiered pink-and-white cake with a tiny replica of the Statue of Liberty, marking the statue 62nd birthday. After his speech the President cut into the cake and, left-handed, tossed slices into the crowd. Hurriedly gobbling down a piece he said "That cake is just as good as it looks".

The next stop was the National Democratic Club where the President and party went for a brief reception. When the party emerged both Mrs. Truman and Margaret carried large bouquets of American Beauty roses. The club itself was bright with fresh flowers and greenery in honor of the distinguished visitors.

At the dinner at the Waldorf Astoria in honor of Senator Robert F. Wagner, sponsored by the National C.I.O. Community Services Committee, the President addressed the cheering group of 2,000 leaders and members of the C.I.O. He paid a great tribute to Senator Wagner and spoke of his services to the welfare of the country. A bronze plaque and a check for $10,000 were awarded in absentia to Senator Wagner who, being ill, was unable to be present. The check was accepted by his son Robert F. Wagner, Jr.

Among those who greeted the President were Philip Murray, head of the C.I.O., Michael J. Quill, international president of the Transport Workers Union; Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime Union and Jacob S. Potofsky, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America.

At City Hall the President spread his notes on a broad-topped lectern which had been made especially for him by the Park Department when he spoke in Central Park on Navy Day in 1945. He requested that it be set up for him this time and even had it taken uptown so that he might use it at Madison Square Garden in the evening.

NEW YORK-Continued

The President covered 36 sunlit miles on the second day of his New York campaign tour on Friday, Oct. 30th. The route took him from midtown Manhattan to Yonkers and back and almost every foot of it was a kind of triumphal journey. He covered another thirty-odd miles to Brooklyn and Queens in the night phase of his campaign. Police officials figured that 1,245,000 persons came out to greet the President on the day tour.

YONKERS Oct. 30th

In his first talk of the day at Larkin Plaza in Yonkers the President's theme was the housing shortage. When the President left the platform he wore in his blue suit the red feather of the Community Chest. He had accepted it from Carol Bayerschmidt a 10-year old blonde Yonkers Girl Scout. "The President thanked me for it" said Carol in wonderment. Yonkers, put on an extraordinary demonstration for a city of its size. It was the first time that a detail of New York police - men - some 60 motorcycles from Manhattan crossed the Westchester line - had ever been invited to Yonkers to supplement the police there. The children and adults cheered and hurled colored paper ribbon and confetti until the motorcycle flankers nearest the President trailed the stuff like a bridal coach pulling away from the church.

HARLEM, October 30th

An enthusiastic crowd of 65,000 roared a welcome to the President as he arrived at a rally in Harlem - the first chief executive to visit Harlem while in office. He spoke at the rally scene at 136th St. and St. Nicholas Avenue. It was here that he received the Franklin D. Roosevelt Memorial Brotherhood Medal. It was presented to him by Dr. C. Asabansa-Johnson, president of the Interdenominational Ministers' Meeting of Greater New York and Vicinity, as the individual who in 1948 had done most in "bettering human relations and international understanding".

Before the President left for Yonkers and Harlem he invited Police Commissioner Wallander to call on him.

Wallander arrived with Chief Inspector Brown and Chief of Staff August W. Flath. The President thanked them and the entire department for the magnificent job of policing his route the previous day.

Three Democratic officials climbed into the President's car as he crossed the line into Westchester county. They were Harold T. Garrity, Democratic Chairman of Westchester; Hugh Grant Straus and Edward J. Murray, Yonkers' Democratic chairman. State Chairman Paul Fitzpatrick and National Chairman J. Howard McGrath were already with the President.

THE BRONX, October 30th.

At the Concourse Plaza Hotel the President was guest at a luncheon given by nearly 1,000 members of the Bronx County Democratic organization. On the dais with the President were Isadore Dollinger, Democratic candidate for Congress against Leo Isaacson and Municipal Court Justice Christopher C. McGrath, Democratic Liberal candidate in the 26th.

NEW YORK CITY

Back at the Biltmore the President received Meyer Dorfman, national commander of the Jewish War Veterans and a group of JWV officials. Dorfman thanked the President for his reaffirmation of the Democratic plank on Israel. The President also received 300 representatives of the nationalities division of the Democratic State Committee and various Democratic officials.

QUEENS, October 30th.

It was at the meeting in Lost Battalion Hall in Queens that the President told his audience "You can throw the Gallup Poll right in the ashcan!". He was introduced by James A. Burke, Queens Borough President. James Roe, Queens Democratic leader shared the platform with Mayor O'Dwyer and James A. Farley just returned from Europe.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S CAMPAIGN TRIP TO CHICAGO, CLEVELAND, BOSTON, PROVIDENCE, NEW YORK, BROOKLYN, ST. LOUIS AND KANSAS CITY- October 24-November 3, 1948

MISSOURI

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 30th

A crowd of 802,000 greeted the President in St. Louis Saturday night in spite of a drizzling rain and 15,000 heard the President close a 271-speech "Give 'em Hell" campaign over 36 states with a fighting address in his home state. Besides the crowd at Kiel Auditorium Chief of Police Jeremiah O'Connell estimated that there were 7,000 persons at Union Station. At least 10,000 stood outside Kiel as he spoke.

As Mr. Truman walked onto the Auditorium stage he was given a 4-minute ear-splitting ovation.

Local Democratic leaders who went to the train to meet the Chief Executive included John J. Dwyer, Chairman of the City Committee and Joseph M. Daret, chairman of the Truman-Barkley Clubs of Missouri. Mr. Dwyer and Mr. Daret rode with the President while former Postmaster General and Mrs. Robert E. Hannegan rode with Mrs. Truman. Miss Margaret Truman rode with Mr. and Mrs. John XXXX Hangle.

Before the President's broadcast began John Hendren, Chairman of the State Democratic Committee spoke and predicted that President Truman would be elected and would carry Missouri by a big majority.

A salute of 21 aerial bombs set off in Alce Plaza heralded the arrival of the Chief Executive when his train arrived in St. Louis. Gaily colored fireworks added a festive note. The President made a brief unscheduled speech at the station, expressing his thanks for the welcome and telling the home folks that he had been "showing" the Republicans all over the country. "I'm from the 'show me' state" he grinned. "I learned how 'show me' works. The Republicans are on the run". At Kiel Auditorium the President seemed greatly pleased at his reception. The crowd let out such a mighty roar when he appeared that the voice of Governor Phil Donnelly, who introduced him, was drowned in the din.

Labor, headed by the AFL steamfitters, turned out in force. Members of the Twenty-first Ward delegation in the front row shouted amid strains of "Hail to the Chief" for the President to "pour it on!" And he did not disappoint them.

The President was photographed with Governor Donnelly and Forrest Smith, state auditor and candidate for Governor on the Democratic ticket.

Placards in the hall bore such signs as "Repeal the Taft-Hartley Act" "for better housing conditions vote for Truman and Barkley" and "The Post Dispatch says Dewey, the CIO says the Post Dispatch went screwy!"

The President had outline notes in front of him for his speech but when the overflow crowd of 12,000 roared at his every bit of ad-libbing, Mr. Truman, in the language of the stage threw his speech away and improvised paragraph after paragraph. He followed the substance of the texts and covered the same subjects, but his manner of expression was more folksy and strictly his own.

When the President introduced Mrs. Truman and Miss Margaret at the station he said, in an aside as he introduced Mrs. Truman "She runs the White House". Miss Margaret Truman wearing a bright red dress smiled and waved to the crowds.

Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder, his wife and daughter Drucie, Postmaster Bernard Dickmann, Air Secretary W. Stuart Symington, Internal Collector James P. Flanagan, John J. Hangle and Robert E. Hannegan were among those who boarded the Presidential train at the station.

Margaret Truman did not go directly to the train at the end of the meeting in Kiel Auditorium. She and Miss Drucie Snyder, daughter of the Secretary of the Treasury went first to the Park Plaza Hotel with a group of friends for a bite to eat. The train left at 11:55 P.M. for the President's hometown of Independence where he will hear the election returns on Tuesday night.

tomorrow you will be deciding between the principles of the Democratic Party - the party of the people and the principles of the Republican Party - the party of privilege.

Your decision will affect you and your families for years to come.

Your vote tomorrow is not just a vote for one man or the other - it is a vote which affects your security, your welfare and your happiness.

Thank Sen. Barkley for introduction. Thank ^{him} on behalf of all the people of this great country for his unflinching leadership in their interest and welfare. Senator Barkley will go down in history as one of our greatest Democrats.

During the past two months I have been up and down country from ~~Minneapolis~~ to Boston to San Diego, from Seattle to Miami - in State Capitals, in county seats in cross roads right ~~in~~ and country towns - telling the what the Democratic Party stands for in government.

The people showed great interest - they came out by millions. They wanted to know what the issues are in this campaign and I told them what was in my heart and in my mind I explained what the Democratic Party Platform adopted at Philadelphia in June means and that I intend to carry it out if you will give me a Democratic

Congress to help.

I thank the people of the United States for their cordiality and courtesy to me for their interest in the affairs of this great nation and the world. I trust the people will choose when they know the facts they do the right thing. I have tried to tell them the facts and explain the issues. Now it is up to you the people of this great nation to decide the kind of government you want B

whether you want government for all the people or government for the privileged few.

Tonight I am at home here in Independence, Missouri with Mrs. Truman and Margaret.
We are here to vote tomorrow
as citizens of this great Republic.

I hope all who are entitled to vote will exercise that privilege. When you vote you are in control of your government. When you vote to -

Ah, serendipity! Little did you realize when you wrote to me that you were going to stumble onto something else!

I have in my possession the handwritten notes (8 smallish pages) of President Truman's last speech to the nation on election eve, November 1, 1948. Here is the story behind it.

The locale is the penthouse suite of the old Huehlsbach Hotel, where the President dictated to me from his handwritten notes. I typed the speech and ran off the finished copies on the mimeograph machine and then gave the original notes and some stenciled copies either directly to the President or to Matt Connelly, I forget which.

Now the penthouse suite was not a particularly good place to use as an office. The only desk in that over-sized living room was small, 18th century French style and kidney shaped, at which the President worked when he was there.

Later that evening I returned to the living room, which was full of people, noise, talk and confusion, and I happened to glance at the desk and the trash basket beside it, and there, in the trash basket, apparently thrown away, were the President's handwritten notes.

I picked them up, took them to my room, ^{and} placed them in an envelope which I put in my briefcase for safekeeping.

Many years later, after I had retired -- I cannot explain how or why I forgot, but I did -- in looking over some of my papers I found this envelope and, looking inside, there were the handwritten notes.

My theory is that the notes were left lying on the desk, and in the noise and confusion of the evening the desk got pushed around a bit because it was so small and kidney-shaped, and the notes just fell or slid into the trash basket.

If you would like to have them, just let me know. Should I mail them or have someone from National Archives come and pick them up? Can we trust the mail?

If I can aid you any further in any way, please let me know.

Sincerely,

Jack Connelly

This great country of yours is in the position of world leadership for peace.

I believe just as firmly as it is possible for a man to believe that Almighty God has appointed the United States of America to that leadership
We were in that same position 30 years ago - we failed to meet our obligation - World War II was the result.

This time we must line up to our opportunity to establish a permanent peace for the greatest age in history.

We have two great goals
one to build a secure life for ourselves and our families here at home and the other ^{to build} a lasting peace for the world.

And now, my fellow citizens,
I confide to you the future welfare of our country.

I have told you the truth as God gives me the wisdom to see

Go to the polls tomorrow and vote your convictions - your hopes - and your faith in the future. If you do that, under God, we can lead the world to freedom and security.

extreme measures. The Republicans may have to go easy on civil rights bills. Joe Grundy and other powerful Republicans are opposed to such legislation.

The election will be won or lost in the Northern, Midwestern and Western states. The South cannot win or lose the election for the Democratic Party. If the President supports the introduction of moderate legislation, beating the Republicans to the punch, the credit would go to Mr. Truman and the Democratic Party even if a few diehard Southern senators try to start a filibuster. Filibusters can be broken.

2. The Danger:

In spite of the Martins, the Tabers, and the Wolcotts, Congress may pass some genuinely good legislation, for which Dewey and Warren would receive credit.

The Answer:

This Congress is so closely controlled by reactionaries and lobbyists that it cannot pass satisfactory bills to stop the disastrous inflation which is frightening the people, or to start construction of the millions of homes needed, or to initiate a more enlightened policy on MRP, or to extend social security.

If one or two good bills are passed under the President's personal prodding, it will be up to the Democratic Publicity Department and campaign speakers to pound it home to the people that the President deserves credit. The President would be leading the fight. Dewey would be standing in the wings, saying: "Yes, we should have some housing legislation. Yes, we should stop inflation. Yes, we should extend social security. Me, too. Me, too!"

3. The Danger:

Congress might pass phony bills on housing, price control, aid to education, national health, etc., which might fool the people.

The Answer:

On the issue of price control, which will be the hottest issue of this campaign, the Congress cannot possibly act. The present Congress cannot take any steps to curb prices or to prevent the people from watching the cost of living go higher and higher and higher. This Congress is run by men who cannot pass price-control legislation without losing their financial backers and incurring the wrath of the N.A.A., the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, and other such groups.

On housing, education, social security, health—the answer is the same. This Congress cannot meet the critical needs of the country. It is tied up by the rich interests which expect to make a killing after the Republican victory in November—if they get that victory.

Dear Ken,

When we met at the Kennedy Library I promised to send you the so-called "Clifford Memorandum," which I hereby do.

I am also sending you an interview with Dick Neustadt in which he outlines the story of the "Clifford Memorandum". I think the explanation that Truman disliked my law partner and Clifford therefore put his name on my memorandum and took mine off, is really an afterthought. But it is so long ago there is no point in calling names!

In any event, I hope you enjoy both articles.

It was good to see you and good to talk about Presidents we have known.

If you come this way let me know and I will take you to lunch.

As ever,

(President Truman's western campaign trip, September 17-October 2, 1948)

Before the Presidential special pulled out of Kansas City at 8:30 o'clock Sunday night, September 19th, Mrs. Truman and Miss Margaret paused to say goodbye to Mrs. J. A. Kurt and her 8-year-old daughter Margaret Ann Kurt who had come to the train to see Mrs. Kurt's sister, Miss Rose Conway, secretary to the President.

The President held a hurried conference before the train left, with a group of Negroes that previously had been brought aboard the train by Charles G. Ross, press secretary. Headed by James McKinley Neal, member of the Missouri Legislature from Kansas City, the group had gone to the train to outline plans of the National Citizens Committee for the re-election of Harry S. Truman. Accompanying Neal were Anne Arnold Hedgeman of New York, executive secretary of the organization and Lewis W. Clymer and Robert L. Sweeney both of Kansas City. Negro newspaper executives and reporters were included in the group.

INDIANAPOLIS

Among the Indiana notables who greeted the President were National Committeeman Frank McSale; Henry F. Schricker, nominee for Governor; Ira Haymaker, State Democratic Chairman; Mrs. Samuel M. Boleton, National Committeewoman; John E. Hurt, State Secretary; Robert Oliver, Winchester, 10th District Congressional candidate; Earl Everett, Muncie, 10th District chairman; Mrs. Inez Scholl, Connersville, 10th District Vice chairman.

Beech Grove, a suburb of Indianapolis got an unscheduled visit from the President. It came about this way: When the President's train stopped at Noblesville, he spied Donald Earl Bauermeister, a sailor on his yacht. He invited the young man to board the train and accompany him to Indianapolis. When the sailor mentioned that he was to receive the Master Mason degree in the Blue Lodge that night, the President expressed a desire to attend the ceremony and arrangements were made. After his address at the World War Memorial, the President arrived at Masonic Lodge No. 694. Word had gotten around and 1,000 persons gathered around the lodge hall. The President was photographed with Mr. Bauermeister; his father Marion J. Bauermeister; Robert Balaner, junior steward; Elsie Fincham, secretary; Ray McCandless, trustee; Alonso Stratton, worshipful master of the lodge; Malvin Gregory, junior deacon; Adolph Whitlock; William Throckmorton, secretary; Thomas Mearns, senior warden; Dwight L. Smith, Franklin, grand secretary of the Indiana Grand Lodge; Paul W. Edlington, chaplain; Carl Rudolph, junior warden; Byron Cox, senior steward; and Carlisle Bauermeister, uncle of the candidate.

While in Indianapolis the President was visited by R.G. Menzies, former Prime Minister of Australia. Mr. Menzies happened to be in Indianapolis and talked to the President in the latter's suite at the Indianapolis Athletic Club, Presidential aides said.

Andrew Jacobs, candidate for Congress from the 11th District spoke at the big rally at Memorial Plaza, jibed at Governor Dewey for his remarks about the engineer on his train being a "lunatic". The President threw back his head and laughed at Mr. Jacobs sallies and Lester Hunt, publicity man for the Democratic county committee did not seem too displeased either.

Mary Virginia Feeney, sister of Mayor Al Feeney, who is in the St. Vincent's hospital recuperating from a major operation had a great incentive to speed recovery when she received a bouquet from the First Lady of the land. At the dinner at the Indianapolis Athletic Club when Mrs. Truman asked the Mayor where his sister was and learned that she was in the hospital, she sent a generous cluster of assorted flowers and a personal note wishing Mary Virginia a fast recovery. Mary Virginia was delighted when the flowers were brought to her by her brother, and when she realized that the thoughtful First Lady has snatched a few moments from the hectic whirl to write the note and arrange for the flowers to be sent.

Miss Patricia M. Burnett, a staff writer for the Indianapolis News also got flowers when she visited the Truman suite. After a pleasant chat, Miss Truman, as she left the room, thrust a corsage of yellow orchids in Miss Burnett's hand.

Miss Margaret was wearing a corsage of yellow roses on her shoulder.

At the Presidential suite in the Indianapolis Athletic Club the President was visited by Mr. and Mrs.

Edward Tudor. Mr. Tudor is a first cousin of the President. The President greeted them warmly. "I saw your mother Lulu Wells, when I was in Illinois recently" the President said. "I recognized her right away. Of course she is a little grayer and a little stouter, but I guess I am too," he chuckled.

"You look like your grandfather (Col. E. A. Wells)," the President said to Mr. Tudor.

In the parade from Union station Miss Margaret Truman carried the large bouquet of red roses which had been given her by her "sister" Pi Phi from Baylor University.

She was photographed on the train platform, after the girls presented the flowers, with Miss Joy Wishear, chapter president, Miss Mildred Moore, Miss Carolyn Finn and Miss Patricia Bond.

Mayor Al Peasey told Indianapolis police that the Secret Service men attached to the President's party told him the Indianapolis police officers did the best job of crowd-handling of any force they had encountered during the trip.

The Mayor also pledged full support to Petrolman Roy G. Troutman, a rookie policeman who had an altercation with Norman Solazzi, 49 years old, Brown county during the President's speech. Troutman had arrested Solazzi after Solazzi gave him a tongue lashing, grabbed his badge, and commented on his being a "rookie policeman" after Troutman ordered a parking lot employee of Solazzi off the street.

Greenfield, October 12

At the Greenfield stop the President was introduced by former Governor Henry F. Schricker and was given a tremendous ovation by a crowd estimated at from 4,000 to 5,000 by Police Chief Furl Johnson.

From little Ann Mitchell Sellar the President received a book about the history of the rooster as a Democratic party emblem. The rooster idea is supposed to have originated in a Greenfield tavern in 1840 and the child is a granddaughter of John Mitchell, Jr. who wrote a book about the emblem.

The President noted that James Whitcomb Riley was born in Greenfield, and added: "There's a lot of common sense in Riley's poetry".

AKRON, OHIO Oct. 11th

Industrial and business leaders of Akron turned out in force to welcome the Presidential special when it reached Akron, and were photographed with the President. Among them were:

J.L. Buchholzer, president of the Hoyer Company;

Ray Bloch, president of the Mohawk Rubber Company;

Roy Bridgewater, president of the Akron Chamber of Commerce;

T.F. Bowls, assistant comptroller at the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company;

E. S. Patterson, president of the First National Bank;

John L. Collyer, president of the S.F. Goodrich Company;

E. W. Litchfield, chairman of the board at the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company.

Former Governor Frank J. Lausche spoke at the Akron armory just before the President appeared and warmly praised the Chief Executive. Governor Lausche had boarded the President's train in Cincinnati for the ride to Akron. He was photographed with the President along with Archbishop John T. McNichols at Cincinnati.

At Willard, Ohio the president's train was boarded by Congressman Walter B. Huber; County Chairman Clarence E. Mota and Leo Walter, county organization treasurer.

A fraternity paddle given to the President "for use on Republicans only" was presented by a University of Akron student, Forrest "Jack" Page.

Officials of the United Rubber Workers, CIO presented the President with a copy of their official newspaper telling him how the union has endorsed his candidacy. The President was photographed reading the paper, along with the donors E. R. "Whitey" Lloyd, vice president of the union; C. Lanning, secretary-treasurer and L. S. Buchmaster, president of the union.

The vast cordon of officers who guarded the President were made up of men from Akron, Barberton, Cuyahoga Falls, the sheriff's office, state highway patrol, railroad police and national guardsmen. Before the President's train left Akron, he called all of the police around him and thanked them, congratulated "Sheriff" John F. Strusenski and "Chief" Robert L. Smith. Strusenski is acting chief of police and Smith the sheriff.

At Rittman, Ohio, the president was presented with a box by local residents. In it he found a box of locally produced salt and bacon. The President told the folks he was going to sprinkle the salt on the tail of the opposition and also bring home the bacon!

The President was photographed in Akron with Patrolman Darwin Melala and Girard Sonnenbarger.

Darrel Witters, band director of Akron University was in charge of the music for the President's speech and had nine school bands lined up to play if the President had appeared at the Rubber Bowl. The Blue and Gold tooters wanted to play "I'm just wild about Harry" but Mr. Witters decided that "Hail to the Chief" would be more dignified-then the ceremony was moved to the Armory anyway.

Mrs. R.J. Kepler, 80, of 46 West State Street, was one of the oldest Akronites to come out to hear the President. Mrs. Eva Hila, 75, was with Mrs. Kepler and they were photographed listening intently to the President's speech.

Among the youngest were Janice Ray Bodenbaugh, 443 Third Ct., who was held by her mother Mrs. Willard Bodenbaugh and Stephen Jr. Lenoria, held by his mother Mrs. Stephen Lenoria, 249 First St., while photographs were made.

AKRON BEACON JOURNAL,
October 12, 1948

When the Presidential train arrived in Akron, Mrs. Truman was made a member of a unit of the Akron Council Parent-Teacher Association. She received a certificate, tied with white ribbons, and a membership pin. Mrs. Willard Frye, president of the PTA council in Akron handed Mrs. Truman the membership scroll, as she was presented to the First Lady.

Mrs. Maurice K. Buck, who represented five chapters of the PEO Sisterhood in Akron and Cuyahoga Falls was on hand at the station to present the First Lady with a beautiful floral tribute. This was in yellow and white chrysanthemums, colors of PEO Sisterhood to which Mrs. Truman has belonged for many years.

Mrs. Harry Varnar, presented Miss Margaret Truman with flowers at the station. Mrs. Varnar represented the Akron Alumnae chapter of Pi Beta Phi to which Miss Truman belongs. Margaret flashed a smile when she saw the flowers and said "I recognize those Pi Phi colors" which incidentally are wine red and silver blue.

Mrs. A. B. Sudler, president of the Summit County Federation of Democratic Women and Mrs. T. E. Anderson Jr., president of Young Women's Democratic Club presented orchids to Mrs. Truman and Miss Truman. They also rode with Miss Margaret in the parade to the Armory. Mrs. Lillian Nicholson, Summit County Democratic chairwoman and Mrs. Dorothy Gorton, head of the Democratic National Digest rode with Mrs. Truman.

Among the women on the reception committee at the station were Mrs. Sydney Albert, president of Akron and Summit County Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. Farr, president of the Akron Deanery, National Council of Catholic women and Mrs. J. B. Burnham, who represented the Akron League of Women Voters.

Mrs. Olga Durkin, vice president at large of northeast district, Ohio Federation of Democratic Women, was also at the station; also Mrs. Clarence Mott, wife of the Summit County Democratic chairman and their daughter Clarence. Mrs. Leo G. Walter, Mrs. Walter Bohan, Mrs. Mary George Wething of Kent and Miss Mary McGowan were also present.

President Truman set out on a cross-country barnstorming trip Friday with a promise to "give 'em hell" and "now 'em down".

Mr. Truman acted not at all like a man who, according to the poll takers and the analysts, is destined to be an also ran on election day.

He seemed gay and confident as he was boarding his 17-car campaign special at Union Station this morning.

U. S. Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, Democratic vice presidential nominee, saw him off with a cheery "Goodby, good luck and now 'em down."

"I think I am going to now 'em down," said the Chief Executive.

"Are you going to carry the fight to them, Mr. President?" he was asked by a reporter.

"We're going to give 'em hell," said Mr. Truman.

"Yes," Barkley chimed in, "it's going to be a victory trip."

"That's right," Mr. Truman agreed, "a VT trip."

The campaign special made its first stop at Baltimore Friday. A delegation of about 40 Democratic leaders turned up at the station and were greeted by Mr. Truman from the rear platform of his private car. Former Senator George Radcliffe, a colleague of Mr. Truman in the latter's Capitol Hill days, introduced the others. They included Joseph Byrnes, president of the State Senate; Robert D. Ennis, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee; acting Mayor Markland Kelly, and Mrs. Thomas D'Alessandro, wife of the mayor.

Gov. William Preston Lane was away on a yachting trip in the Potomac with Gov. William Tuck of Virginia, but was represented by his aide, Louis O'Donnell.

The next stop was at Harrisburg, Pa., where a crowd of 150 gathered along the railroad tracks. Mr. Truman shook hands with members of the legislative committee of the Brotherhood of Firemen, and waved to the crowd.

"Good luck, Harry," a man yelled and the crowd took it up as the train was pulling out.

Late Friday evening, during a brief stop in Pittsburgh, Mr. Truman boarded the Red-White-and-Blue Freedom Train.

Speaking from the rear platform, he told a crowd of 500 that the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution and other documents ought to convince anybody that our Government is "the best in the world."

He pointed out that, under the American system, the individual and his rights were held to be all important.

"There are other systems," he said, "that make the individual subject to the whims of the government."

PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S CAMPAIGN TRIP TO THE WEST COAST

This trip is strictly political, and one sign of it is the absence on the train of Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughn, the President's Army Aide, and the other aides.

Mr. Truman's entourage this time is made up of Miss Margaret Truman (the First Lady will join the party tomorrow in Des Moines); White House Secretaries Matthew J. Connelly and Charles G. Ross; Clark G. Clifford, the President's counsel; Jonathan Daniels, a former White House secretary and now editor of the Raleigh News and Observer; Brig. Gen. Wallace Graham, and three representatives of the Democratic National Committee, William Bray, William Boyle and Mrs. India Edwards, director of the women's division.

Others include Jack Romagna, a lightning-fast shorthand expert, who takes down the President's speeches; Miss Rose Conway, the President's personal secretary, and Dewey L. Long, the White House transportation officer.

Aboard also in addition to Secret Service men are 36 newspaper and magazine reporters, 8 radio reporters, 5 photographers and C. S. Linkins and other representatives of Western Union.

He spoke at the National Plowing contest at Dexter, Iowa, in the first major speech of his transcontinental tour, denouncing the Republican party and its "Wall Street reactionaries" in such terms that White House aides conceded that "from now on, there'll be no holds barred in this campaign."

A brilliant sun beat down from a bright blue sky as the President wearing sun glasses spoke to the Dexter audience, estimated by Iowa State patrolmen to number about 60,000 to 75,000. Mrs. Truman had joined the President in Des Moines and was on the platform with her daughter, Margaret, who had accompanied the President from Washington and had been introduced at each rear platform stop.

Thousands lined the streets of Des Moines through which Mr. Truman was driven after he finished his Dexter speech.

Mr. Truman is a hard-working, tireless campaigner. For him Friday's work did not end with the 11:30 P.M., Eastern daylight time, speech at Crestline, Ohio. At 2 A. M., Central standard time, Saturday, when the train paused at the Englewood station in Chicago, the state Democratic leaders, headed by Jacob M. Arvey, climbed aboard and the sleeping President was awakened to speak to them for a moment. In the group were Joseph Gill, Chicago city clerk; Alderman George Kells, Illinois Democratic chairman, and Arthur Elrod, Cook county commissioner.

And by 5 A. M., Central standard time, the President was talking again with the Illinois politicians, and, at 5:44 A. M., seemingly as fresh as a daisy, he was talking from the rear platform to a crowd of 2,500 gathered at the railroad station in Rock Island, Ill.

And so it continued at Davenport, Iowa, at 6:10 A. M., Iowa City 7:21 A. M., Oxford 7:50 A. M., Grinnell 8:54 A. M., and on to the big show at Dexter, including his speech, a luncheon, a press conference with Iowa editors, and the motor journey back to Des Moines, where the train headed out for Chariton and Melcher, Iowa, en route to Kansas City.

President Truman enjoyed a country dinner in his shirt sleeves Saturday. Sitting down to a chicken repast with a group of farmers and local dignitaries, he removed his coat and set the example of others at the table.

The table, covered with a red-and-white-checkered cloth, was set up in a large tent. Folding chairs were put around it for thirty-two persons, including Mrs. Truman and her daughter, Margaret.

The President shook hands and chatted with those who were seated near by. He was flanked at the table by Howard Walker and Ralph Mortimer, both farmers. Next to Mr. Walker was Mrs. Lois Agg, on whose farm the speech was delivered.

The President fell to heartily on fried chicken, mashed potatoes, buttered corn, baked beans, tomatoes, relish, cheese and coffee.

After lunch, he drove out to look over some conservation projects in the fields.

Mr. Walker and Mr. Mortimer said that he expressed amazement at the size of the crowd and commented on the "excellent" dinner, but did not discuss politics.

Miss Jean Carter, 22 years old, of Dallas Center, Iowa, queen of the plowing festival, was photographed with the President.

In Grinnell, Iowa, where the President's special train stopped Saturday en route to Dexter, 5-year-old Kathleen Meldrem gave Mr. Truman a big ear of corn and was photographed with the Chief Executive.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S CAMPAIGN TRIP TO THE WEST COAST
September 17- October 2, 1948

Sunday was a quiet day for the President and Mrs. Truman and Miss Margaret Truman. They spent most of it resting in the family home in Independence, Mo.

At ten o'clock Sunday morning Mr. Truman drove a borrowed car(a Dodge convertible) to the home of his sister Miss Mary Jane Truman at Grand View. After that, accompanied only by a Secret Service man he drove to the home of his brother Vivian Truman, walked around the farm a bit then returned to Independence to rest until time to board his train.

In his first rear-platform appearance after he crossed the Missouri line the President charmed a crowd that gathered along the tracks at Trenton. He told about his ties with Trenton and his experiences as a youngster. He was working at the National Bank of Commerce in Kansas City, he told the crowd, getting $35.00 a month and boarding with an elderly lady who ran a boarding house at 1314 Troost. She let him live there and have two meals a day for $5.00 a week.

"Imagine that" the President said" and she was a native of Trenton, and because that good old lady was so kind to me, I have always had a warm spot in my heart for this town even though it does go Republican sometimes. "

"I don't think you are going to do that next time" the President added" How about it?"

"No" came the response from the crowd.

Before going to Independence the President and his family stopped at the Jackson County Courthouse to register. They were registered as Voters Nos. 1, 2 and 3 in the 7th precinct, 1st ward. This was because the registration was held especially for them as they will be traveling in another part of the country on the regular registration days of October 5, 9, and 12. Miss Anna Kelley, clerk, registered the Chief Executive and family.

Saturday's thirteen-speech schedule, beginning at 5:45 A.M.(CST) at Rock Island, Illinois and ending at Polo, Missouri at 8 P.M. left the President's voice showing some signs of cracking under the strain. However a night's rest seemed to renew Mr. Truman and he headed west at 8:30 P.M. (CST) for an all night run across Kansas and into Colorado. The President planned no speeches as he moved across Kansas, but he conferred on the train with Democratic National Committeeman Carl V. Rice and a dozen other party leaders who rode as far as Topeka.

At Kansas City Sunday night Hugh M. Scott, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, and his party fidgeted aboard their train for 22 minutes while another train was processed through the yards. It was President Truman's campaign special.

(New York Times, N.Y. Herald Tribune and Washington Post, Sept. 20, '48)

When the Presidential special reached Denver at mid-morning more than fifty Colorado party leaders went aboard to shake hands with the President before he started a tour through the streets of the city, out to the Army Fitzsimmons General Hospital in the suburbs, then back to the state Capitol.

Thousands cheered Mr. Truman as he rode in an open car through Denver in the bright sunshine.

At the hospital the President went directly to a ward on the fifth floor where many of the patients were amputees. He stopped at each bed, shook hands with the occupant, and joked and chatted for a moment.

Stopping at the bed of Sgt. Howard Pratt of Cooperton, N. D., who lost a leg between the Rhine and the Moselle as a member of a tank destroyer regiment of the Fourth Armored Division, Third Army, the President said:

"How are you getting along?"

"Just fine," Sergeant Pratt replied.

"You'll be able to walk again all right," the President said.

Sergeant Pratt and other patients said they "got a lift" from the Commander in Chief's visit.

To the crowd on the Capitol lawn the President presented himself as a modern Paul Revere, warning the people across the land not that the Republicans were coming "but that they are here" and "have been in Washington for the last two years in the form of the notorious Republican Eightieth Congress."

At Colorado Springs, where the President again had perfect weather with a bright sun beating down from a blue sky, 3,000 met the train. He was greeted by Mayor James N. McCullough.

In Pueblo, Colorado's second city, with a population of 52,000, there was a greeting by several thousand and a band when the train arrived at 6 P. M.

The President, in a brief talk, asked the continued support of labor. He recalled the "Ludlow massacre," near here, saying that it was labor strife such as that which brought passage in 1935 of "Labor's Bill of Rights." He denounced the Taft-Hartley Law.

On the way from Colorado Springs to Pueblo there was something of an argument between the President and his physician, Brig. Gen. Wallace Graham, who complained that the President was not taking proper care of his voice or carrying out all of the prescribed treatment, including "swabbing" and "gargling." General Graham was worried lest the President lose his speaking voice before the tour was ended.

The President spoke to a standing-room-only audience of ten thousand in the Salt Lake City, Utah tabernacle Tuesday night. Thousands waited outside.

With major and minor speeches already behind him since he left Washington on Friday, the President was up at 7 A.M., Mountain standard time, to talk to a crowd of 1,500 which gathered around the rear platform at Glenwood Springs, Col., which has a population of only 2,253 persons.

Two-year-old Jimmie Morris gave the President some marigolds as the Presidential train stopped at Glenwood Springs. Jimmie is the son of Mrs. Boyd Morris.

At Grand Junction, the President's last stop in Colorado, there was a crowd of more than 7,000 on hand to laugh at the President's jibes at Congress and particularly at the chairmen of the House and Senate Appropriations Committees for their attitude toward irrigation and hydro-electric power projects in the West.

In Salt Lake City he quoted Representative Taber as saying, "The West is squealing like a stuck pig," when there was a protest over House cuts in reclamation funds in 1947.

"There," the President said, "you have the Republican attitude toward the West, summed up in a single phrase, 'The West is squealing like a stuck pig.' The Republicans are ready to lead you to slaughter and they resent it if you protest."

There were about 5,000 persons, and a band, waiting to meet the President at Price, where Governor Maw and Representative Walter K. Granger, Democrat representing the First Congressional District, headed the group of Utah party leaders boarding the train to ride to Salt Lake City.

A crowd at Helper numbering perhaps 2,000 set up a cheer as the President, Governor Maw and Representative Granger stepped on the rear platform of the President's car, and waved.

On his way to Salt Lake, rolling across mountains and valleys under a dazzling sun, President Truman was greeted at every stop by large and friendly crowds.

Gifts of peaches, celery and other products of the county were brought to his train. In the town of Helper, Utah, he was presented with a black miner's helmet.

The donor was Frank Fox, one of John L. Lewis' lieutenants, who is vice president of District 22 of the United Mine Workers of America. Fox said he was all out for Mr. Truman for a full, four-year term, and promised that the helmet would protect him from "hard knocks."

The President's rasping voice which had worried his doctor and his aides was notably better Tuesday night even after speeches in Colorado and Utah. After protesting, he finally took his medicine, and the results justified Brig. Gen. Wallace Graham in overruling his Commander in Chief's objections to "swobblings."

President Truman appealed to the voters of the West Wednesday to join him in a "crusade to keep the country from going to the dogs."

In a day of campaigning through Nevada and California he blasted away at the record of the Republican-controlled Eightieth Congress and, without mentioning names, challenged the Republican candidates to tell the nation where they stand on vital issues.

In a speech from the rear platform of his train in Truckee, Calif., at noon, Mr. Truman told his audience that they were looking "at the next President of the United States." The President arrived late Wednesday afternoon for speeches in Oakland and San Francisco.

In San Francisco Mr. Truman told a crowd of more than 10,000 persons outside City Hall not to lose faith in the power of the United Nations to achieve peace.

The President began the sixth day of his 9,000-mile, sixteen-day cross-country trip with a speech Wednesday morning in a park at Sparks, Nev. "Everybody knows where I stand," he said. "You don't get any double talk from me. I'm either for something or against it, and you know it. I hope you can find out what the other people stand for when the time comes. I very much fear that it will be a long time before you know exactly what they believe."

It was in his speech on the steps of the old State Building in Reno that the President assailed the Republican committee chairmen in Congress.

Mr. Truman motored across the bay from Oakland to San Francisco, and made a nocturnal speech in front of the City Hall. He then returned to Oakland to address a Democratic rally and denounce the "power trust."

He was given an enthusiastic greeting by the crowd in San Francisco, which assembled between City Hall and the Veterans Memorial Opera House, where the United Nations was launched in June 1945.

Police Chief E. M. Mitchell estimated the crowd at 30,000.

When his train reached Oakland, Calif., Wednesday evening, a handful of Wallace pickets were at the station, carrying placards which read, "End Jim Crow in the Army" and "America Wants No Quarrel with Russia - end the Cold War."

As he traveled aboard his special train through the Sierras from Nevada into California to continue his "battle for the West," the Chief Executive held a series of informal conferences Wednesday with a succession of California Democratic big-wigs in his private car.

President Truman charged in a major campaign speech in Los Angeles Thursday night that Communists "are guiding and using" Henry A. Wallace's Progressive party. He appealed to American liberals not to commit the "folly" of voting for it.

"A vote for the third party" the President warned, "plays into the hands of the Republican forces of reaction, whose aims are directly opposed to the aims of American liberalism."

Bitterly, he assailed the Republican record in Congress on housing and anti-inflation legislation, social security, the health bill and Federal aid to education.

At Bakersfield, Calif., President Truman pounced upon the recent statement in Albany, by former Governor Harold E. Stassen, of Minnesota, who said that the Truman administration was deliberately trying to keep prices high until after the election.

In his Fresno speech Mr. Truman assailed the "economic royalists" of the Republican party. Without mentioning him by name, the President also denounced Representative Bertrand W. Gearhart, Republican, of California, as one of the "worst obstructionists" in Congress.

President Truman made a point of the fact that he had served in the Army in the first World War, and had not sought exemption from the draft because he ran a farm in Missouri or because he was, at the time, thirty-three years old.

In the way the point was raised, it was open to the interpretation that Mr. Truman possibly meant to call attention to the fact that he was a veteran of the armed forces while his Republican opponent, Governor Thomas E. Dewey, of New York, was not.

The President, addressing a crowd of 2,500 persons from the rear platform of his seventeen-car special train, got into the subject through a discussion of the farmer's need for sympathy and support from the government.

A large afternoon rush-hour crowd lined the sidewalks of Los Angeles as Mr. Truman rode through, although the number did not compare with the more than 750,000 persons who turned out to see Mr. Truman when he was here last June. At that time, however, his procession covered many more miles than it did today.

President Truman and James Roosevelt buried their political feud, Thursday. At the last stop before the Presidential special pulled into Los Angeles, Mr. Roosevelt climbed aboard the rear platform and grasped the President's hand. Flash bulbs popped while the two men exchanged grins over the handshake.

Among the Indiana notables who greeted the President were National Committeeman Frank McHale; Henry F. Schricker, nominee for Governor; Ira Haymaker, State Democratic Chairman; Mrs. Samuel M. Ralston, National Committeewoman; John E. Hurt, State Secretary; Robert Oliver, Winchester, 10th District Congressional candidate; Earl Everett, Muncie, 10th District chairman; Mrs. Inez Scholl, Connersville, 10th District Vice chairman.

Between Greenfield and Indianapolis Miss Margaret Truman sent a 5-pound box of candy to the newsmen in the press car.

Beech Grove, a suburb of Indianapolis got an unscheduled visit from the President. It came about this way: When the President's train stopped at Noblesville, he spied Donald Earl Bauermeister, a sailor on his yacht. He invited the young man to board the train and accompany him to Indianapolis. When the sailor mentioned that he was to receive the Master Mason degree in the Blue Lodge that night, the President expressed a desire to attend the ceremony and arrangements were made. After his address at the World War Memorial, the President arrived at Masonic Lodge No. 694. Word had gotten around and 1,000 persons gathered around the lodge hall. The President was photographed with Mr. Bauermeister; his father Marion J. Bauermeister; Robert Raisner, junior steward; Elmer Finchum, secretary; Roy McCandless, trustee; Alonzo Stratton, worshipful master of the lodge; Melvin Gregory, junior deacon; Adolph Whitlock; William Throckmorton, secretary; Thomas Mears, senior warden; Dwight L. Smith, Franklin, grand secretary of the Indiana Grand Lodge; Paul W. Eddington, chaplain; Carl Rudolph, junior warden; Byron Cox, senior steward; and Carlisle Bauermeister, uncle of the candidate.

While in Indianapolis the President was visited by R.G. Menzies, former Prime Minister of Australia. Mr. Menzies happened to be in Indianapolis and talked to the President in the latter's suite at the Indianapolis Athletic Club, Presidential aides said.

Andrew Jacobs, candidate for Congress from the 11th District spoke at the big rally at Memorial Plaza, jibed at Governor Dewey for his remarks about the engineer on his train being a "lunatic". The President threw back his head and laughed at Mr. Jacobs sallies and Lester Hunt, publicity man for the Democratic county committee did not seem too displeased either.

Mary Virginia Feeney, sister of Mayor Al Feeney, who is in the St. Vincent's hospital recuperating from a major operation had a great incentive to speed recovery when she received a bouquet from the First Lady of the Land. At the dinner at the Indianapolis Athletic Club when Mrs. Truman asked the Mayor where his sister was and learned that she was in the hospital, she sent a generous cluster of assorted flowers and a personal note wishing Mary Virginia a fast recovery. Mary Virginia was delighted when the flowers were brought to her by her brother, and when she realized that the thoughtful First Lady has snatched a few moments from the hectic whirl to write the note and arrange for the flowers to be sent.

Miss Patricia M. Burnett, a staff writer for the Indianapolis News also got flowers when she visited the Truman suite. After a pleasant chat, Miss Truman, as she left the room, thrust a corsage of yellow orchids in Miss Burnett's hand.

Miss Margaret was wearing a corsage of yellow roses on her shoulder.

At the Presidential suite in the Indianapolis Athletic Club the President was visited by Mr. and Mrs.

"I recognized her right away. Of course she is a little grayer and a little stouter, but I guess I am too," he chuckled.

"You look like your grandfather (Col. E. A. Wells,)" the President said to Mr. Tudor.

In the parade from Union station Miss Margaret Truman carried the large bouquet of red roses which had been given her by her "sister" Pi Phis from Butler University.

She was photographed on the train platform, after the girls presented the flowers, with Miss Joy Wichser, chapter president, Miss Mildred Myers, Miss Carolyn Finn and Miss Patricia Bond.

Mayor Al Feeney told Indianapolis police that the Secret Service men attached to the President's party told him the Indianapolis police officers did the best job of crowd-handling of any force they had encountered during the trip.

The Mayor also pledged full support to Patrolman Roy G. Troutman, a rookie policeman who had an altercation with Norman Zolezzi, 49 years old, Brown county during the President's speech. Troutman had arrested Zolezzi after Zolezzi gave him a tongue lashing, grabbed his badge, and commented on his being a "rookie policeman" after Troutman ordered a parking lot employee of Zolezzi off the street.

MEMORANDUM

Subject: Should the President call Congress back?

This election can only be won by bold and daring steps, calculated to reverse the powerful trend now running against us. The boldest and most popular step the President could possibly take would be to call a special session of Congress early in August. We make the following points:

1. This would focus attention on the rotten record of the 80th Congress, which Dewey, Warren and the press will try to make the country forget.
2. It would force Dewey and Warren to defend the actions of Congress, and make them accept the Congress as a basic issue.
3. It would keep a steady glare of publicity on the Neanderthal men of the Republican party, the reactionary men such as Martin, Halleck, Wolcott, Allen, who will embarrass Dewey and Warren. The press is with us on the 80th Congress issue, and the Martins, Hallecks, Wolcotts, Tabers are bound to stir up severe criticisms.
4. It would split the Republican Party on the major questions of how to deal with housing, inflation, foreign policy, social security, etc.
5. It would give President Truman a chance to follow through on the fighting start he made on his Western tour. It would show the President in action on Capitol Hill, fighting for the people, delivering messages to Congress at joint sessions in person, broadcasting his messages, leading his party in a crusade for the millions of Americans ignored by the "rich man's Congress."

This course may be hazardous politically, but we cannot shut our eyes to the fact that President Truman faces an uphill fight to win the coming election—and the American people love a fighting leader who takes bold action to help the ordinary citizens against the lobbies and the corporations.

Here are the objections to the special-session plan, and the answers as we see them:

1. The Danger:
Republicans may invite a Southern filibuster by introducing strong civil rights legislation.
- The Answer:
The President or Senator Barkley, after the President's nomination, could call in the Southern members of Congress and make it plain to them that they stand in extreme danger of losing their patronage, their positions of power in the party, and their prestige in the event of a Republican victory.

If the Southerners are recalcitrant at this meeting, the President might announce that he will call for a coalition of liberal Democrats and liberal Republicans to pass moderate civil rights legislation, and that he will ask Senator O'Mahoney to introduce a bill embodying his recommendations to the Congress. He might tell the Southerners that he will go on the radio to announce his position, to explain that he feels that the majority of Democrats and the majority of Americans support his position against a stubborn few.

The chances are that the President will never have to take these

WHO WOULD YOU VOTE FOR?

Candidate #1

He was an only child whose father was a newspaper editor. After school hours, he work in his father's printing shop and did farm chores. When he graduated from high school, he attended a prestigious university and later completed his law degree. This candidate continued his education so that he received degrees from six other colleges. He is married and has two sons. He has been a very successful prosecutor who convicted many major organized crime leaders. Candidate #1 is active in his political party and has been a governor of a large state and a presidential candidate once before. He is an Episcopalian who enjoys singing very much. Most of the major newspapers believe he should win and have given him their endorsement. He is 46 years old.

Candidate #2

He is the oldest of three children. His father was a trader and farmer who was also active in local politics. As a boy he read a lot and worked on the family farm. He graduated from a public high school and took a few college classes, but never graduated from college. He is a Baptist who enjoys classical music. He served as a captain during a major war. He and a war buddy started a clothing business which failed. Later, he became active in local politics, eventually going to Washington as a member of the Legislative Branch. This candidate has always worked hard for his political party and has been president once before. Despite his presidential experience, few newspaper think he should win. He is married and has one daughter. He is 64 years old.

so-called political influence of the press. My opinion has not changed over the years. Any good politician with nerve and a program that is right can win in the face of the stiffest opposition.

My familiarity with the history of past presidential campaigns was another factor that kept me from worrying about the press opposition I faced in 1948. Since the election of Jefferson in 1800 there had been thirty-six presidential campaigns in which the press had supposedly played an important part. In eighteen of these campaigns the press had supported the losing candidate, and in the other eighteen it had been behind the winner. This was the clearest proof I needed that I had nothing to fear regarding the influence of the newspapers and the newer medium of radio.

TRUMAN AND THE 1948 PRESS

Memoirs by Harry S. Truman Volume Two: Years of Trial and Hope

I was sure that the American people would agree with me if they had all the facts. I knew, however, that the Republican-controlled press and radio would be against me, and my only remaining hope of communicating with the people was to get the message to the people in a personal way.

The communications facilities of the country represented another issue in the 1948 campaign. The figures showed that approximately ninety percent of the press and radio opposed me and supported the other candidates. This was to be expected, as most were owned, operated, or subsidized by the same private interests that always benefited from Republican economic policies. Even the segments of the press and radio which were not directly controlled by anti-administration interests depended to a great extent upon the advertising revenue which came from the wealthy, and often selfish, private groups. The power companies, for instance, purchased millions of dollars' worth of newspaper and magazine space in which to attack the public utility program of the federal government. Other lobbies and pressure groups, like the National Association of Manufacturers and the United States Chamber of Commerce, were constant contributors to press and radio in the guise of advertisers and sponsors.

My chief objection was not to the space and time which were purchased by the Republicans, because the same were for sale to the Democrats. I did resent, however, the commonplace practice of distorted editorials and slanted headlines in the press and of outright misrepresentation in the daily offerings of the columnists and commentators. The worst offense of all was the editing and distorting of the facts in the news.

If the facts were presented in the news columns of the press and in the newscasts over the air, I was satisfied and paid no attention to expressions of opinion or character assassinations by certain columnists and commentators. But the danger which I saw was the confusion of fact with mere speculation, by which readers and listeners were undoubtedly misguided and intentionally deceived. The attempts of the gossip and scandal columnists and commentators were usually obvious and therefore of no consequence, but when the serious analysts and "ivory tower" critics strayed from the facts - as they frequently did - the public was in danger of being misled by those in whom it had placed some degree of credence and confidence. It is common knowledge that the mere fact that a statement appears in print makes it credible to many people.

It was my conviction that the major media of communication had failed in their responsibility to present facts as facts and opinion as opinion. It seemed to me that many owners, publishers, and columnists of the press and radio were deliberately irresponsible during a time of extreme importance to the people of the United States and that they were not living up to the responsibilities attached to the constitutional privileges of freedom of the press and freedom of speech. As far as I was concerned, they had sold out to the special interests, and that is why I referred to them in my campaign speeches as the "kept press and paid radio."

Too many candidates have lived in fear of the press and radio and have courted their good will as if the outcome of the election depended upon it. But I had learned the error of this idea in my own political life. In my own state I always faced the overwhelming majority of press opposition. I overcame it at every turn and never had any respect for the

TASKS:

Using the data comparing the 1948 election results with 1944, complete one of the following tasks:

1. Design graphs to reflect this data either hand designed or through a computer graphics program.
2. Write a summary indicating where Truman's election strength was located and find several sources or biographical data on Truman that would make sense as to why those regions favored Truman.
3. From these figures and any other sources, determine if the votes received by Wallace and Thurmond affected the election.
4. Write a short explanation about the political and/or social situations in 1944 and 1948 that may have affected the election turn out or results.
5. Find data indicating voting results in 5 southern states in 1944 and compare this with the results in 1948. What does this say about the political situation in 1948?

* Note that some of the percentages do not total 100 because of the minor-party votes.

Writing a Letter of Congratulations!

The 1948 campaign is over. Your assignment is to write President Truman a congratulations letter. Look at the letter Joe Adkins sent the President. In the right hand corner is Mr. Adkins' address and the date of the letter. On the letter you write put your address in the right hand corner and the same date Mr. Adkins used. Skip one line and then on the left hand side write the address of the person to whom you are writing -- in this letter it will be President Harry S. Truman. Skip another line and write your greeting. What punctuation mark goes after it? Now write the body of the letter. Use your own ideas and words to congratulate Truman. Be sure to indent for paragraphs. Did Mr. Adkins indent his paragraphs? Look at the closing. It should line up with your address at the top. "Respectfully yours," is a good way to close a letter to a President. What are some good closings?

TRUMAN TALKS ABOUT WHY HE RAN IN '48

By: Harry Truman Memoirs

Volume Two: Years of Trial & Hope

If I had heeded the desire of my family, I would have made plans to leave the White House at the end of my first term. I took no steps and made no moves at any time to discourage anyone from seeking nomination to succeed me. From a personal standpoint, I had no desire, just as I had none in 1944, to undertake a national political campaign merely for the sake of gratifying private ambitions. I had already been President of the United States for more than three and a half years.

The compelling motive in my decision to run for the presidency in 1948 was the same as it had been in 1944. There was still "unfinished business" confronting the most successful fifteen years of Democratic administration in the history of the country. The hard-earned reforms of the years since 1933 which insured a better life for more people in every walk of American life were taking permanent root in the 1940's. These benefits were still vulnerable to political attack by reactionaries and could be lost if not safeguarded by a vigilant Democratic administration.

I never wanted to fight for myself or to oppose others just for the sake of elevating myself to a higher office. I would have been happy to continue serving my community as a county judge. I would have been even happier as a senator, and would have been content to stay entirely clear of the White House. I had accepted the nomination as Vice-President not with a sense of triumph but with a feeling of regret at having to give up an active role in the Senate.

I have been asked how I could have had a part in a campaign for a fourth term for Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1944 against my conviction that no President should serve more than two terms.

The answer is simple - I knew what would have happened in 1944 if Roosevelt and his ideals were not allowed to continue through those extremely critical times. If the forces of reaction could gain control during the emergency when both domestic and foreign affairs were in a dangerously volatile condition, I knew that within a matter of months the postwar period would witness the repeal or nullification of much of the enlightened social program for which Roosevelt and the Democrats had fought so hard since 1933. Even though the President was physically not as strong, he was a sure winner for the forces of liberalism, and I wanted to do all I could to help.

Again in 1948 there was no doubt as to the course I had to take. The world was undergoing a major readjustment, with revolution stalking most of the "have-not" nations. Communism was making the most of this opportunity, thriving on misery as it always does. The course of freedom was being challenged again - this time from a new and powerful quarter, Soviet Russia.

In 1948 I felt that just as my years in the Senate had prepared me for the presidency, the years I spent serving out the term of Roosevelt prepared me to carry out our proposed program of domestic development and foreign security. I also felt, without undue ego, that this was no time for a new and inexperienced hand to take over the government and risk the interruption of our domestic program and put a dangerous strain on our delicately balanced foreign policy.

I had ample demonstration - in the functioning of the Eightieth Congress - of what could happen to a forward-looking administration program. The destructive and reactionary attitude of the Eightieth Congress convinced me of the urgent need for more liberalism in government rather than less. I felt it my duty to get into the fight and help stem the tide of reaction if I could until the remaining basic aims of the New Deal and the Fair Deal could be adopted, tried, and proved.

During their control of the Eightieth Congress, the Republicans had shown that they did not want - indeed, did not understand - an enlightened program. They did not understand the worker, the farmer, the everyday person. Theirs was an unreasoning, emotional resistance to progress. Any legislative proposal to improve the lot of the general public, in working conditions, health risks, or long-range social security, aroused their opposition. Most of them honestly believed that prosperity actually began at the top and would trickle down in due time to benefit all the people.

In foreign affairs the Republican leadership was still suffering the aftereffects of isolationism. It had apparently learned but little since the wrecking of the League of Nations by the "twelve willful men." Without the inspired self-reversal and the brilliant, intelligent leadership of Senator Arthur Vandenberg and that of Charles A. Eaton, chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, we could never have achieved any bi-partisan policy in the conduct of foreign affairs. Without the leadership of these enlightened Republicans during those two years, the United Nations, the Marshall Plan, NATO, and other projects would have been hampered, if not blocked completely, by the selfish Republican majority.

Thus, many things combined to convince me that I had to make a fight for it - the threat being posed by Russian imperialist Communism; the misguided clamor for appeasement in the name of peace as advocated by the so-called Wallace Progressives; the large bloc of traditional Republican isolationists; and the coalition of southern Democrats and northern Republicans, who hoped to compel the repeal of a great deal of New Deal legislation and a return to the laissez-faire doctrine of pre-depression days. These forces had to be defeated or our country would be thrown back to the hard times of reaction.

1948 CAMPAIGN INFORMATION

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE CAREER OF HARRY S. TRUMAN

Harry S. Truman, President of the United States, was born in Lamar, Missouri, on May 8, 1884. He and his family moved to Independence where he attended the public schools there, graduating in 1901.

After graduation he held various jobs as a railroad timekeeper, bank clerk, and bookkeeper. In 1904, he returned to the family farm to work for several years. During this time he also joined the Missouri National Guard.

As a corporal in the Missouri National Guard, Truman helped organize the 2nd Regiment of Missouri Field Artillery at the outbreak of World War I. In France, he was promoted to captain. His bravery and consideration for members of his battery won him their admiration and affection as a leader of men. After the war he was commissioned a major and later promoted to colonel in 1932.

After the Armistice, Truman returned home to marry Bess Wallace of Independence on June 28, 1919. They have one daughter, Mary Margaret, born February 17, 1924.

From 1922-1924, he was an elected County Judge for Jackson County. In 1926 he was elected presiding judge, a position he held until he became a U.S. Senator. During his 8 years as presiding judge, Truman had the chief responsibility for expending $60,000,000 in tax funds and bond issues in Jackson County. He supervised the building of a modern road system.

He was elected Senator in 1934 and again in 1940. During his second term, he was named chairman to investigate the National Defense Program. This Truman Committee did an excellent and impartial job, exposing graft and corruption. It is estimated that he saved the government hundreds of millions of dollars. His successful leadership of this Committee led to his nomination as Vice President in 1944 with Franklin D. Roosevelt, during a crisis time for Americans--World War II.

Harry S. Truman succeeded to the presidency on April 12, 1945 on Roosevelt's death only 83 days after his inauguration as Vice President.

He successfully presided over the final conquest of Germany and Japan. He completed Roosevelt's plans for the formation of a United Nations.

In 1947 he initiated the Truman Doctrine which saved Greece and Turkey from communism. He adopted the Marshall Plan which gave financial aid to war-torn European countries to help them recover.

Harry S. Truman as President of the United States, has controlled the spread of communism. He saved Berlin from total communist control by the Berlin Air Lift which ended the Soviet boycott of the city. His strong leadership has convinced the communists that he is a man of firm action--a man who is able to make decisions for a secure future for all free people.

These are other people active in the campaign process and some data on them. See if you can find an internet link for each. If you do, it would be quite an accomplishment since many are now forgotten.....except in the files of the Truman Library.

William Bray (worked for Democratic National Committee on staff---later became Postmaster General)

Max Loenthal (staff member of the Truman Committee--former Senator and lawyer)

J. Howard McGrath (Chairman of the Democratic National Committee--former Senator from Rhode Island--appointed Attorney General in Truman's second term.)

Harold L. Ikies (former Secretary of Interior under Roosevelt and Truman's first term---at the time of the election he was a private citizen--had been dismissed by Truman due to disagreements on policy--did however support Truman's reelection over that of Wallace or Dewey)

Sam Roseman (special consule to Truman and Roosevelt--Clark Clifford assumed his place after he resigned)

DEWEY'S RECORD SPEAKS FOR ITSELF

What kind of a President will Thomas E. Dewey make? Let's find out by looking at what he has done. That's the only good way to find out, for actions speak louder than words.

Thomas E. Dewey's record as Governor of New York State is written in terms of action and results. He is a Governor who has been called "the greatest public administrator of our generation" and who is famous for getting things done.

In building his record of good government, what underlying philosophy makes Dewey tick? Books can -- and have -- been written on the subject, but here in brief are the major principles on which he operates:

1. He has confidence in the common sense of the American people. He was born and grew to manhood in the Middle West and had divided his adult life between the city of New York, Albany -- the capital city of his adopted State -- and the country town of Pawling, where he operates a typical eastern dairy farm. Such a background is ideal for understanding America, for knowing the aspirations of its people and giving them the kind of government they need and want. Dewey is successful in dealing with public issues because he never underestimates the intelligence of the American people.

2. Government must be from the heart as well as the head. The biggest job in government is human relations. Housing is not just a matter of bricks and mortar - it is a matter of human lives. Public health is not merely segregation of the sick from the well, but the prevention and cure of disease. Public welfare is not just handing out a dole -- is a matter of opportunity for the handicapped.

3. Freedom is the most precious heritage of America. Free government is the target of attack over a large part of the world. Here at home there are those who would barter freedom for security. Dewey sees no such choice. We can -- we must -- have both.

4. Central government is too far removed from the people. Leave as much as possible of the power of government in the home towns where the citizens can keep a watchful eye on government housekeeping.

5. Only a solvent government can be a good government. Government financial policies can make or break inflation.

6. Labor relations is just one form of human relations. Success in this field depends on minimum of compulsion and a maximum of cooperation.

7. The future hope of our republic lies in a rising level of intelligence through education. Our school systems must be permitted continuously and unstintingly to expand, under well-trained, well-paid teachers.

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE CAREER OF THOMAS E. DEWEY

Thomas Edmund Dewey, Governor of the State of New York, was born in Owosso, Michigan on March 24, 1902. He attended the public schools there and worked as a farm hand when he was sixteen.

He was graduated from the University of Michigan with an A.B. degree in 1923. Moving to New York, he was graduated from the Columbia Law School with the degree of LL.B in 1925. He has received the Columbia University medal for Excellence, the Cardinal Newman Distinguished Service Award at the University of Illinois and honorary degrees from twelve colleges and universities.

In 1928, he married Frances Eileen Hutt, of Sapulpa, Okla. They have two sons: Thomas E. Dewey, Jr., 15 and John Martin Dewey, 12. They have a farm at Pawling, Dutchess County.

In 1931, he became Chief Assistant U.S. Attorney for Southern New York, and later served briefly as U.S. Attorney. In 1935, he became Special Prosecutor in charge of the Investigation of Organized Crime.

In 1937, he was elected District Attorney of New York county, the first Republican elected to that office since 1913. His racket-busting and crooked-Tammany-politician-busting form one of the epics of American legal history.

In 1938, running for Governor of New York, he received more votes on the Republican line than Governor Herbert H. Lehman got on the Democrat line but he was nosed out by the support Lehman received on the American Labor Party line. However, the Republican Party was restored to the head of the ballot and the Republicans gained control of both houses of the Legislature.

In 1941, as National chairman of the first USO campaign, Governor Dewey organized the national drive for $10,675,000. The campaign raised $16,000,000.

In 1942, Governor Dewey was again the Republican candidate for Governor of New York State and was elected by a majority of 173,254.

In 1944, Governor Dewey was the Republican candidate for President of the United States. He was defeated by President Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democrat and American Labor Party candidate. The total vote for Roosevelt was 25,602,505; for Dewey, 22,006,278.

In 1946, Governor Dewey was reelected to the governorship by the largest majority in the history of the State -- 687,151 votes. His opponent, U.S. Senator James M. Mead, had the support of the Democrat, American Labor, Liberal and Communist parties and the P.A.C.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S CAMPAIGN TRAIN

During President Truman's 1948 whistle-stop campaign, he traveled 30,000 miles by train. President Truman chose to travel by train so that he could stop and give speeches to people in many towns around the United States. The train could go slowly and safely through the big crowds that would gather in large cities to hear President Truman speak. It could race across the prairies.

The train had 17 cars. The train had two diners where people could eat. It had three lounge cars where people could sit and talk or read. The train had cars where people could sleep. The train had a press car where newspaper reporters traveling with President Truman could write stories for their newspapers.

The most important car of the train was the car where President Truman and his family lived during the campaign. The car was named the Magellan after a famous explorer. The Magellan is iron-clad and weighs 285,000 pounds. The Magellan made a comfortable home for the President and his family. The Magellan has a kitchen. The car has a dining room which seats six people. The Truman family enjoyed having company for dinner while on the train. The Magellan has a office where President Truman worked, three bedrooms, and a living room. The living room could seat nine people and was decorated pale green. On the back of the Magellan was a platform where President Truman gave his speeches.

The train company and Secret Service men made sure the train trip was safe. The track was inspected all along the way. Guards were posted at every intersection. Secret Service men made sure people did not get too close to the train. A rabbit was the only thing hurt during the 30,000 mile campaign.

The engineers and other people who worked on the train liked President Truman and his family. They thought the President and his family were friendly and courteous. The President and his family always asked for things; they never ordered people around. President Truman liked to joke with the engine crew and even played engineer with enthusiasm.

The 30,000 whistle-stop campaign helped President Truman to win the election of 1948.
